BRAD considered the alternative that Jerry O'Donovan had placed before him.

A fine wasn't important, but jail—that was something you couldn't toss off with a wise-crack.

"What good could Sheila do?" he asked. "What could she testify to, even if you called her?"

"I'd think you could see that!" snapped Jerry. "Sheila's obviously a nice girl. Even the police know she hadn't been drinking. If she testified you were in fit condition to drive, and that you were only hurrying on her account, it would carry a lot of weight with any intelligent judge or jury. Enough, I imagine, to get you off with a fine."

Brad frowned. He didn't like the idea of dragging Sheila into it. Particularly since he could see that was exactly what Jerry, with justifiable scorn, expected him to do. But—there was his father to be considered.

Cabot Talton was an indulgent father in many ways; the more so because Brad had given him little previous occasion to be otherwise. But there was one thing he cherished more than his only son—the Talton name.

Auto Crash In Dedham Kills One

King Winter covered New England with a new blanket of snow today, promising an all-day storm and lower temperatures and bringing two deaths in the Greater Boston area.

A strong nor'easter brought unusually high tides here and along the North and South shores, flooding wharves and streets and marooning cars and pedestrians.

Miss Emily Ward, 55, of Philadelphia, died of a heart attack believed to have been brought on by the storm a few minutes after entering a New York-bound bus at Park square. She had been visiting in Newton.

KILLED IN CRASH

In Dedham, Mrs. Ella Frances Ellis of King street, West Hanover, was killed when a car driven by her son, Calvin, according to police, collided with a truck operated by Joseph B. Caplan of Hutchins street, Roxbury.

Caplan, whose skull was fractured, was taken to Norwood Hospital, where his name was placed on the danger list. Calvin Ellis was slightly injured. Police said

Pre-Primary Act Repeal Upheld

The Supreme Court today upheld repeal of the pre-primary convention law and refused an appeal to have the question placed upon the ballots for a referendum.

In a 13-page decision read by Judge Fred T. Field the full bench of the court ruled that Governor Hurley acted within his powers in declaring the repeal an emergency measure and putting it into effect in the closing hours of the last legislative session.

Governor Hurley's action was challenged by Francis Prescott of Worcester, former chairman of the Republican State Committee. Prescott sought the order for the secretary of state to issue papers for a referendum, which the court denied.

By making the act an emergency measure, the governor precluded a referendum on the question. Pending the supreme court's decision, a referendum petition containing 23,944 names was filed with Secretary of State Frederic W. Cook, but he declined to place the issue upon the ballots.

77,000 Men To Work on New Ships

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17 (AP)—The United States' new warship building program, tentative statistics showed today, will provide work in the next fiscal year for 77,000 men.

This estimate was made by navy officials on the basis of recommendations in President Roosevelt's 1939 budget message. Requests for supplementary construction were expected in his national defense message.

Speaker Bankhead said after a White House conference the message would not go to Congress until the latter part of the week, thus giving the House time to dispose of the pending Navy Department appropriation bill.

ESTIMATED $163,000,000

The 1939 budget asked for an expenditure of $134,000,000 for new construction. Of this sum, $122,500,000 is for new warships, but the whole $134,000,000 may be considered in estimating the employment to be provided.

Add an estimated 20 to 25 per

Boston Imports Show Big Gain

Port of Boston business took a decided upswing the past week, it was shown by figures released today by Acting Collector Owen J. McKenna.

Imports entered here for immediate consumption were valued at $3,145,844 as compared to imports of the previous week valued at only $1,676,780.

Customs duties also showed a large increase when importers paid $504,995 on the week's imports, nearly double that of the previous week.

Arrival here during the past week of three full cargoes of sugar totaling 29,088,000 pounds, proved to be one of the heaviest items of imports. Wool imports totaled 58,985 pounds, a gain of 14,080.

Boudoir Bandit Gags, Robs Girl

Threatens Her Life In Back Bay, Flees With $40

A 23-year-old Back Bay secretary was threatened with death, gagged with her own stockings, blindfolded, bound to her bed and robbed of $40 by a "Lone Wolf" bandit in her Fenway apartment today.

The girl, Miss Anna C. Daniels, secretary to a Boston insurance executive, released herself and called help after the bandit escaped.

Not since the depredations of James Walters, "Lone Wolf" of a decade ago, has a crime of this nature been committed in that section, police said.

PRINTS ON BOTTLE

The intruder was casual and nonchalant. He drank two glasses of wine before making his unhurried departure—and police said this may prove his undoing. Fingerprints were found on both the bottle and the glass.

Later, seated in a police car at the Back Bay station, "still so nervous that I'm still shaking," Miss Daniels told her own story to a Boston Evening American reporter as follows:

"I had retired about midnight and I was sort of half asleep when this man came in.

"I say I was half asleep because I heard him open the latch on the service door which leads into the kitchen of my apartment.

Clemency Fails for DiStasios

Frank DiStasio, 54, one-time Revere candy maker, and his 23-year-old son, Anthony, will die some time after midnight tonight in the electric chair in State Prison.

Shortly after noon, Governor Hurley denied a final plea to save the son by commuting his sentence to life imprisonment.

By the governor's action, Massachusetts, for the first time in its history, will execute a father and son.

"The court has found no error of law and I find no error of fact," Governor Hurley declared in a statement handed to reporters.

"Accordingly, I find this appeal for commutation of sentence is utterly lacking in merit," the statement continued.

"I am compelled by a sense of official responsibility to deny the appeal and to permit the law to follow its prescribed course."

A lengthy appeal to save Anthony was made Friday afternoon by Attorney William R. Scharton. The latter made no appeal for the father.

Scharton based his plea on the contention that the father had told police his son was not involved in

$2,200,000 "EL" SAVINGS POSSIBLE, SAYS WEBBER

The entire annual deficit of the Boston Elevated Railway could be wiped out by re-arranging its finances and buying its electric power instead of generating it, the Public Utilities Commission reported today.

Savings of more than $2,200,000 yearly are possible, Commissioner Abraham C. Webber declared in a supplemental report.

He urged that the state acquire the road's common stock at market prices, saving nearly $800,000 a year interest. Refinancing of leased or subsidiary lines would bring an additional economy of $300,000, he said.

MORE BUS LINES URGED

Webber also estimated more than $1,000,000 could be saved annually by disposing of the power generating equipment and contracting for electric current elsewhere.

Although the commission recom-

2 Mayors Urge New WPA Plan Of Spending

La Guardia Says Aid Saved N. Y.; Wants Prices Lowered

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17 (AP)—New York's Mayor LaGuardia advocated today a new federal public works spending program to meet the business recession.

He also urged business to keep prices down to encourage private spending.

Bouncing up and down in the witness chair before the Senate unemployment committee, the mayor demanded a "better break" in Works Progress Administration relief for employables in the nation's largest city.

SAYS AID SAVED N. Y.

Both LaGuardia and Mayor Harold Burton of Cleveland, who testified after him, urged expansion of the WPA program to take care of all jobless employables in the nation. Burton said the government should keep out of the "boundless field" of direct relief.

LaGuardia recommended that, in addition to launching a new public works program, the federal government prescribe uniform work day and week standards.

He urged that the WPA take care of all employable who were out of jobs, that the United States Employment Service be brought under the Social Security Board, and that steps be taken to provide the needy with food from agricultural surpluses.

LaGuardia said New York City "could not have existed" during the depression without federal aid.

RELIEF PLEAS MOUNT

The stocky little mayor disclosed New York relief applications had mounted from about 2780 pending in September to nearly 7400 on file at the present time.

LaGuardia asserted the huge Public Works Administration expenditures had created the business improvement since the depression but "the pass was incomplete" because "business and industry missed the ball."

"Balancing the budget doesn't bring about recovery, but recovery balances the budget," he said, scoring those who oppose a long-term, regulated program of government spending.

LaGuardia declared the committee had made a mistake in asking business men, "the sellers," to testify. He said purchasers should be called to give their ideas of when they thought they could resume buying.

Union Clash as Ford Rehires

DETROIT, Jan. 17 (INS)—A unionist was reported beaten up today in front of Henry Ford's main plant in Dearborn as the rehiring of 10,000 laid-off workers there signalized a renewal of the CIO drive against Ford.

Roy Davis, a member of the CIO's United Automobile Workers union, was the reported victim. Roy Jewell, another unionist, reported he and Davis had gone to gate 3 of the plant to hand UAW membership applications to Ford workers as they entered the plant.

A gang of men charged them, he said, and Davis was badly beaten. Jewell claimed he was taken inside the plant, questioned, and then told to "get out of Dearborn." He has not seen Davis since, he said.

'Prophet' Seized In Tabernacle Fire

SALT LAKE CITY, Jan. 17 (AP)—A gray-haired, 71-year-old self-styled "Prophet of the Living God" was held for investigation with three companions today, following a grass fire that for a time threatened Salt Lake City's famed Tabernacle. With George Odis were Paul A. Millett, 57; his son, Archie, 29, and William H. Hall, 67, who termed themselves "Servants of the Prophet." The men were arrested in the Temple grounds after Odis surrounded himself with a circle of fire and his companions stood by with clubs to beat off persons who attempted to reach him.

Roosevelt Refused 'Item Veto' Power

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17 (INS)—The Senate Appropriations committee today turned down President Roosevelt's request for power to veto individual items in appropriations bills. The provision, requested by the President, was stricken from the House-approved independent offices bill shortly before the committee, headed by Senator Carter Glass (D.) of Virginia, ordered it reported favorably to the Senate.

CIO Calls Sit-Down In N. Y. Steel Plant

HARRISON, N. J., Jan. 17 (AP)—The Committee for Industrial Organization called a sit-down strike of 1000 men today at the Crucible Steel Co. of America plant. Edwin Kaempf, organizer of the Steel Workers Organizing Committee, said the men sat down at 8:15 a. m. and planned to prevent any work being done anywhere in the plant.

Strike in Mexico

VERA CRUZ, Mexico, Jan. 17 (AP)—Industrial and commercial activity was stalled throughout the state of Vera Cruz today by a strike of the Regional Federation of Workers and Peasants.

Correcting the Record

THE scoreboard for testing political and business management lies in a simple record of results achieved.

He said: "We have raised the nation's income from $38,000 millions in 1932 to about $68,000 millions in 1937. Our goal, our objective is to raise it to $90,000 millions or $100,000 millions."

But, in using figures, the Chief Executive neglected to point out that under the New Deal the value of the dollar had been cut in half.

In 1932, the last year before the Roosevelt administration, dollars were evaluated on the basis of the old gold price, namely, $20.67 for an ounce of gold. Roosevelt changed that by various monetary moves, and by the beginning of 1934 the price of gold had been raised to $35 an ounce, making the new dollar in gold content worth only 59 per cent of the old dollar.

THUS, in submitting the record, Mr. Roosevelt is comparing results in the recent period, measured in terms of the 59-cent dollar, with the Hoover record of 1932, measured in 100-cent dollars.

Thus, it appears that most of the so-called improvement in national income can be accounted for in the devaluation of the dollar.

In terms of gold, there has been practically no measurable recovery.

In no other period in the annals of American business has the recovery from depression been so small, so slow and so insecure.

Strike Suspends Oregon Papers

PORTLAND, Ore., Jan. 17 (INS)—For the third day Portland was without a daily newspaper, due to the printers' strike.

Officers of the Multnomah Typographical Union, whose 235 employed printers quit work at 1 p. m. Saturday, scheduled no meeting today but reported they would be available at the Labor Temple, if publishers of Portland's three newspapers were ready to accede to demands for shorter hours and wage increases.

It was the first time in its history that Portland was without a newspaper due to labor trouble. The three papers forced to suspend publication are the Journal, Oregonian and News-Telegram.

Between 700 and 800 employes of the three newspapers were thrown out of work. Approximately 700 full-time, full-salaried employes signed a petition urging strikers to arbitrate.

The Typographical Union declared:

"The union wishes to make it clear the question of arbitration is not the cause of cessation of work. This is definitely a dispute over adequate wage rates and equitable hours.

"The union demand that the shorter work week be granted is primarily to spread work and relieve suffering among irregularly employed members."

Hague Declines Senate Post

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Jan. 17 (INS)—Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City, foe of the CIO, celebrated his 62d birthday by declining appointment to the U. S. Senate.

It was offered him by A. Harry Moore, retiring senator, who becomes Governor of Jersey at midnight.

Hague said he would not accept the Senate post because it would "look too much as if I was running out on a fight."

Three A. F. of L. leaders today had forwarded demands to President William Green of the Federation that Hague be deprived of his complimentary A. F. of L. membership because of "anti-labor" activity.

Maine Woman Dies Of Rare Disease

State Trooper Ralph Dice drove 84 miles in 88 minutes over icy roads January 10 to rush a drug here from Portland for use in combatting the disease, which physicians said attacked the white corpuscles of the blood.

Senate Hearing Set for Reed

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17 (AP)—A Senate judiciary committee called a hearing today for Thursday on the nomination of Stanley F. Reed to the Supreme Court.

The sub-committee was formally set up by the full judiciary committee to consider the nomination. Headed by Senator Logan (D.) of Kentucky, it also included:

Senators King (D.) of Utah, Dieterich (D.) of Illinois, McGill (D.) of Kansas, Van Nuys (D.) of Indiana, Borah (R.) of Idaho, and Norris (Ind.) of Nebraska.

Logan said the committee would meet Thursday "to see whether anyone wants to be heard."

Parkman Sworn In, Clerk Doyle Poses

Former State Senator Henry Parkman, Jr., the man generally credited with having swung the election for Mayor Tobin, was sworn in today in the mayor's office as corporation counsel for the city.

The oath of office was administered by City Clerk Wilfred J. Doyle, who then broke his own rule of nearly 20 years standing and posed for newspaper photographers. Doyle, on occasions, has become irate when photographers snapped him.

Ex-Governor Curley Ill With Bad Cold

The former chief executive, who returned from Florida Thursday, became ill last night. He had been visiting his brother, Former City Treasurer John J. Curley, now recuperating in Miami from pneumonia.

Coasting Death Stirs South Boston

South Boston parents today asked coasting safety for their children following the death of one child and injuries to four others on Telegraph street since the last snow storm.

The aroused residents asked that the street be restricted exclusively for coasting or that it be sanded to prevent any coasting at all.

Naval Hero Dies

SAN DIEGO, Calif., Jan. 17 (AP)—Captain Bruce R. Ware, 2nd, 50, U. S. N., retired, whose gun crew on the transport Mongolia fired the first shot for America in the World War and sank a German submarine April 12, 1917, died yesterday in Naval hospital.

World's Threat Cited in Plea For U. S. Navy

Admiral Leahy Tells Board New Building Program Vital

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17—World political conditions, both in Europe and in the Far East, "are more threatening than at any time since 1918 and are distinctly worse than a year ago," Admiral W. D. Leahy, chief of naval operations, bluntly told the House naval appropriations sub-committee in testimony made public today.

"The present moment," he added, "is not one when the United States can safely reduce its means for national defense without jeopardizing our national security."

Leahy's assertions, released on the eve of President Roosevelt's scheduled message calling for a huge, new shipbuilding program, were made in justification of the Navy Department's demand for increased appropriations for the fiscal year beginning July 1.

SOME FEATURES LACKING

"We must continue," the admiral declared, "to maintain our existing national defense establishments at their highest efficiency, and provide those features which are still lacking and which are vital to the efficiency of national defense at sea.

"In China, a major conflict is in progress, involving grave danger to American citizens. The civil war in Spain continues unabated, and the possibility of a general European conflict is ever present."

In a correlated statement, Assistant Secretary of Navy Edison asserted that in the face of "unsettled world conditions" the navy is in a "high state of efficiency as regards morale and training, the shipbuilding program is proceeding as rapidly as practicable, and further construction is amply justified."

NEW NAVY AIR GOAL

The navy's aeronautics bureau has set an objective of 2050 airplanes by 1941, compared with an earlier goal of 1910, Rear Admiral A. B. Cook, chief of the bureau, disclosed at the hearings.

No appreciable increase is contemplated, Cook said, in the number of planes for the fleet.

G-Men May Hunt Harvard Soph

Police Chief Timothy F. Leahy announced today that G-men were prepared to enter the search for 18-year-old Wilbur James Gould, Harvard University sophomore, missing for more than a week.

After a conference with the youth's sister, Mathilde, who left her studies at Columbia University Medical School to aid the hunt, the chief said Wilbur's father, wealthy New York shoe manufacturer, had obtained an offer of help from federal authorities at Washington.

Circulars signed by Leahy were printed this morning and a check of pawnshops was begun to ascertain if valuables belonging to the missing student have been sold.

Sees Roosevelt No. 1 Dictator

Johnson Says He Has Greatest Power

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17 (INS)—Hitler, Mussolini and Stalin are "only amateurs" as compared to President Roosevelt when it comes to possessing powers, Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, former NRA administrator, said in a radio talk. Appearing as a one-man "forum," Johnson said:

"Never before in the history of civilization has so much power been vested in one man as that which President Roosevelt now controls.

"Russia and Germany have dictators, but when did Russia not have a dictator, and when did Germany not have a tyrant at its head? The day the government takes over control of business and industry is the day I leave for Tahiti."

Johnson declared that President Wilson had given up his war powers the day after the armistice was signed; President Lincoln's war power was taken over by Congress, "but President Roosevelt has kept his emergency power, and is adding to it."

Navy Plans Work for 77,000

cent for the supplementary estimates, and the total comes to about $163,000,000.

Naval officials say 85 per cent of the cost of a warship goes for labor. This means labor will receive about $138,550,000.

Officials figure the average labor cost at $6 a day for each man. This means that 23,091,000 working days will be paid for.

TWO $60,000,000 SHIPS

All those days will be squeezed into 12 months, beginning next July 1. The program, however, goes on for some years.

Mentioned in the 1939 budget are two 35,000-ton battleships, which will cost $60,000,000 each.

It takes four years to build a battleship, which means $15,000,000 a year will be spent on each one. This in turn means that 7000 men will be given work through four years for each dreadnaught.

The 85 per cent estimated labor cost refers not only to men actually employed in building the ships, but also to those employed in producing the raw materials or special equipment used on the fighting craft, as well as those engaged in transporting it.

U. S. TO BE READY

Chairman Vinson (D.) of Georgia of the House naval committee said he expected the message to consist of two parts—"one foreign and one domestic." Many members forecast the chief executive would warn the rest of the world that the United States intends to be ready for any emergency.

Meanwhile, Chairman Walsh (D.) of Massachusetts of the Senate naval committee said in a debate last night with Senator Nye (R.) of North Dakota that the administration's program involved no thought of entering any international armaments race.

Nye, however, termed the navy expansion program "part of an adventurous gamble on a foreign war."

"It is part of a campaign of getting the United States ready for a slaughter of its men on foreign fields, to fulfill its hopes and ideas in foreign capitals," he declared.

Big Navy Supply Bill Given O.K. In House

Measure Provides for $26,723,186 Increase; Sums for Boston

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17 (INS)—The House Appropriations committee today approved a $553,266,494 navy bill for the fiscal year beginning July 1, the largest navy supply measure since 1921.

The total represented a $26,723,186 increase over current appropriations, but a reduction of $11,139,967 under budget estimates.

The measure was reported to the House as Congress awaited President Roosevelt's special message later in the week calling for a huge new shipbuilding program, for which additional naval appropriations must be made.

Bulk of the increase over current funds was accounted for by $27,263,150 for ship construction, $117,363,150 being made available for the 1939 fiscal year as against $90,000,000 currently appropriated.

2 NEW WARSHIPS

Combined with a $20,700,000 allocation for armor and armament, the measure provided $18,422,100 for the laying of two new $70,000,000 battleships, two cruisers, eight destroyers, six submarines and four auxiliary vessels, and $119,641,050 to continue construction of two battleships, three aircraft carriers, eight cruisers and 16 submarines already under way.

A carry over of $44,845,271 from present funds brought the total for construction to $182,908,421.

In the field of naval aviation, the bill made available $44,170,000 for construction of 319 planes, maintenance and experimental work. The committee pointed out that the navy predicts it will have 1870 useful planes by the end of the 1939 fiscal year, only 40 short of its original 1941 objective of 1910 planes.

$500,000 FOR BOSTON

For naval public works the bill provided $10,969,000, an increase of $4,140,000 over current appropriations. Allocations of this sum included ammunition depot, Iona Island, New York, $60,000.

In addition, the committee went beyond budget requests and appropriated $500,000 for improvements to the Boston navy yard, $250,000 for the Mare Island (Cal.) navy yard, $150,000 for the Pensacola (Fla.) air station, and recommended that the naval station at New Orleans be provided with funds for handling of decommissioned vessels.

In another instance the committee again went beyond the department's request in increasing the $500,000 budget estimate for acquisition of strategic war materials to $3,000,000.

In response to a plea from the navy that it be permitted to encourage expansion of private shipbuilding yards, because government yards are "totally inadequate to meet wartime needs," the committee wrote in a provision permitting the navy to turn contracts over to any private yard where "in the opinion of the Secretary of Navy it would be advantageous to the national defense."

Shots Halt Bold Prison Break

JOLIET, Ill., Jan. 17 (INS)—With two wounded convicts in the prison hospital, three others today were clamped into solitary confinement for their attempted break from the state penitentiary here.

The five made a desperate bid for freedom by throwing a crudely improvised scaling ladder against the outside wall, after they had overpowered their guard in the prison laundry.

Those involved in the escape were Donald Loftus, 36, a bank robber; Harry Gerken, 28, serving 30 years for murder; Peter Ristich, a life-term habitual criminal; William Yoho, a bank robber, and Edward Rabalais, 34, a robber.

Three of the men actually got over the 22-foot wall. Loftus, however, was shot in the shoulder as he landed after the jump. Ristich sprained his ankle as he fell and was captured, while Yoho ran into Guard Captain Clarence Hawkins, out walking with his dog, and surrendered. Gerken was shot in the leg as he topped the wall. Rabalais turned back when he heard the gun shots.

'Ambulance Baby,' Mother Both Well

Mrs. Catherine B. Parsley of Ellis Street place, Lynn, and a bouncing baby girl were in excellent health today at Lynn Hospital after the pair were overtaken by the stork enroute in a police ambulance.

Patrolman John F. Casey, who is the father of two children, aided in the ambulance birth and on arrival at the hospital doctors found mother and the eight-pound girl in excellent condition.

Gen. Johnson Says:

DEALERS REACH OUT

Seek to Chain Industry

By HUGH S. JOHNSON

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17—Day by day in every way it becomes clearer that the idea of this Administration is to put the Federal Government in charge of the "regulation" of all production—which means, to a greater or lesser extent, "running" all farming and all business.

HUGH S. JOHNSON

Not content with running every one of our 6,000,000 farms with his ever-normal granary and production quotas Mr. Wallace in his annual report, and several times since, has recommended something similar for all industry. As long as it was only Mr. Wallace who was saying it, it seemed only a personal opinion. But now the President, in his conferences with industrialists, is talking about regulating and controlling the flow of industrial production to take out its peaks and valleys.

Already the government has a very husky control over finance and credit. Pronouncements of Mr. Wallace and, to an extent, of Mr. Eccles, about regulating the amount of debt are entirely consistent with the statements of New Deal publicists. They indicate that a great government debt, for example, $100,000,000,000, if held by the banks under government control can be used like a spigot to turn prosperity off and on.

The idea is that this is a great reservoir of credit which can be expanded and contracted. What is completely over-looked is that this is only potential credit—which will be used or not only as there is confidence in being able to use credit at a profit. It is existent—and idle—now.

The information and experience upon which these theories rest is often absolute zero. The President used as an example of the need for regulating industrial production the assertion that all the railroads had insisted on ordering all their steel at one time in the year with the implication that this required production and delivery all at one time of the year.

The implication is absolutely incorrect. It is true that tonnage in several industries — railroads and farm implements particularly—is contracted for at one time of the year. But it is not true that it is delivered or produced all at one time.

The order is for the purpose of establishing priority in future rollings. Deliveries are specified throughout the whole year as need occurs. What an ass a manufacturer would be to load up with one pound more of dead inventory than he needed!

Does anybody suppose that it is to the advantage of any manufacturer to have avoidable peaks and valleys in his production curve? The effect to smooth them out proceeds under force of the single and greatest incentive there is in the capitalist system—lower costs and increased profits. There is no possible pressure of fascist control that could produce a greater incentive.

The whole thesis now being discussed is cockeyed and the strabismus is a result of either the ignorance of its proponents or a perfect knowledge coupled with a more sinister design to harass and at length destroy the capitalist system.

It is true that part of the extremities of production or lack of production is due to the theory of wholly unchecked competition, regardless of the public interest. But exactly that is the essential principle of the Anti-Trust Acts which this Administration proposes to enforce to the hilt.

You can't deal with this problem by saying that, on the one hand, we will enforce the Anti-Trust Acts to the limit, but on the other we will permit industrial combination to regulate production.

The policy must be either to enforce them or to revise the principle on which they are based.

This Administration has never been willing, frankly, to make that choice. The much rumored and so-called administration plan to have regulation of production and complete enforcement of the Anti-Trust Acts at the same time is a contradiction in terms.

The DAILY WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

"Washington Merry-Go-Round," by Drew Pearson and Robert S. Allen, sprightly and informative column on the inside activities of political Washington, is now a daily feature of the Boston Evening American. It will also appear in the Boston Sunday Advertiser every Sunday.

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—WPA is faced with an extraordinary mystery. Although unemployment has increased tremendously, applicants for work-relief have not been given more than 250,000 jobs which are open to them.

Suspected reason: Local politics.

The increase in relief jobs came on December 9, when Harry Hopkins, faced with huge demands, let down the bars and ordered 350,000 extra jobless added to WPA rolls. Subsequently, this order was enlarged to permit an unlimited expansion of WPA rolls in nine cities—Cleveland, Detroit, Chicago, St. Louis, Cincinnati, Milwaukee, St. Paul, Omaha and Kansas City.

But despite this order and the unremitting increase in unemployment, only 100,000 so far have been added to work-relief lists. This is less than one-third the number authorized by Hopkins.

For some unexplained reason local WPA officials, notwithstanding the clamor for aid and wide latitude granted them, are taking their own sweet time about giving men jobs.

Labor's Nonpartisan League, flooded with complaints charging local officials with playing politics, believes there is wholesale sabotage of the government's relief program, and threatens congressional investigation.

WPA authorities already had started this inquiry, but after this laborite protest they rushed out new instructions to local officials to speed up the expansion of their rolls immediately or explain their failure to do so.

LADIES' BRAIN TRUST—With brain trusts now the fashion among both Democrats and Republicans, Madame Secretary Perkins has organized one for herself. She now has a Ladies' Brain Trust.

There are four members of the Trust, as follows:

Miss Mary LaDame, special assistant to Miss Perkins, is the most active Trusterette. Miss LaDame is a woman of about 50, has spent most of her life in social work, was with the Russell Sage Foundation, became acquainted with Madame Secretary when Miss Perkins was New York State Industrial Commissioner.

In the Labor Department Miss LaDame was assistant to Frank Persons, able director of the U. S. Employment Service, but took matters over his head to the secretary to such an extent that the situation became intolerable. When Persons threatened to quit, Miss LaDame was moved into Miss Perkins' outer office.

LADY LOBBYIST—Mrs. Clara Beyer, assistant to Verne Zimmer, director of Labor Standards. Mrs. Beyer is the wife of Dr. Otto Beyer, able member of the National Mediation Board (for railroad disputes). A native of California, she became an intimate of Miss Perkins when they both worked for the New York State government.

Mrs. Beyer is trying to fill the large shoes vacated by Ed McGrady in lobbying for the Labor Department on Capitol Hill. But the fit has not been close and during the wage-hour fight Mrs. Beyer had no success in getting the House of Representatives to place the legislation under Madame Perkins.

Miss Mary Dewson, member of the Social Security Board and vice-chairman of the Democratic National Committee, is Miss Perkins' most capable adviser. In fact she is probably the shrewdest lady around the New Deal high command.

Congresswoman Mary Norton of New Jersey, chairman of the House Labor Committee, is rear-guard Trusterette. Being little more popular than Miss Perkins, she should be sympathetic, if not useful.

The Ladies' Brain Trust has not been received with wild applause by masculine members of the New Deal, who point to the fact that Madame Secretary has some of the best masculine brains of the Administration right in her own department.

However, Miss Perkins seems happier about taking her hair down with members of her own sex, and it should be interesting to watch the future improvements.

Heroine in Jersey Hotel Blaze Dies

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Jan. 17 (AP)—Helen Sullivan, 26-year-old hotel operator, who remained at her switchboard arousing guests until her dress caught fire, died today of burns suffered in the Hotel Plaza fire which took three other lives nearly three weeks ago.

She was forced to run through a wall of flame to escape from the building.

N.Y. Trade Board Urges Profits Tax Repeal

Seidman Tells Senate Probers Business "Hates Levy"

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17 (AP)—A representative of the New York Board of Trade urged the House ways and means committee today to approve immediate repeal of the undistributed profits and capital gains taxes as a stimulant to business.

M. L. Seidman, chairman of the board's tax committee, said no tax was "more hated and discredited" or puts such fear in business.

Seidman was the first private witness at hearings on tax revision recommendations of a ways and means subcommittee. The subcommittee has proposed modification of the undistributed profits tax for all but a few closely held corporations. These modifications would abolish the tax for firms with incomes of $25,000 or less.

BUSINESS FEARS

The great majority of businessmen, Seidman said, sincerely believe the undistributed profits and capital gain taxes "had much to do with the distortion of our capital economy, and with the breaking down of confidence in the future functioning of our economy."

URGES SPENDING PROBE

No reorganization of federal taxing methods, he said, should be undertaken without a thorough reexamination of federal spending. Tax revision, he added, should be aimed to make more citizens "realize that it is their money that is being spent."

He expressed the opinion that if personal holding companies were permitted to wind up their affairs without further tax on stockholders, "there would be mighty few of them that would choose to exist."

Representative Treadway (R.-Mass.) asked what loss in revenue would result from repeal of the undistributed profits tax, and boosting the normal corporate income tax.

"There need not be a dollar lost," Seidman asserted.

Lowell Youth Is Jailed in Theft

LOWELL, Jan. 17—Joseph Charters, 19, of 32 Pine Hill street, was given a year in the House of Correction today when he appeared before Judge James E. O'Donnell in district court for sentencing after pleading guilty to larceny of an auto.

Manuel Sousa, 21, of 148 Crosby street, received a suspended sentence of a year and was placed on probation for two years.

Charters and Sousa were captured Friday morning in Rutland, Vt., when a gasoline station owner, who is also a constable, suspected that they had a stolen car. The machine had been taken from a Lowell garage Thursday night. Sergt. Edward J. Liston and Inspector John F. Scully went to Rutland and returned with the prisoners Saturday morning.

'Alky' Deaths Up In Bay State

With deaths from alcohol decreasing in virtually all sections of the country, Massachusetts' toll is mounting, according to Medical Examiner Timothy Leary.

As a remedy, Dr. Leary asks support for a bill filed in the Legislature which would prohibit the sale of ethyl alcohol by druggists except on a physician's prescription.

"Ethyl alcohol is sold in 95 per cent strength—190 proof—which is double the proof of most whiskeys," Dr. Leary said.

"Although this alcohol may be sufficiently diluted at the beginning of a drinking bout, as intoxication comes on less attention is given to dilution. When alcohol accumulates in the blood to a strength of five-tenths of 1 per cent, death is practically inevitable."

WORCESTER, Jan. 17—Two Worcester brothers today were in critical condition at St. Vincent Hospital as the result of one of the city's many coasting accidents.

David F., 7, and Thomas D. Gill, 11, of Millbury street, were severely injured when their sled was struck by an automobile on Maxwell street.

it better if I said horrible experience—was when he suddenly flashed his light into my face.

"He walked right over to the bed and he said: 'Now don't you shout or cry out. If you do I'll hit you over the head with this!'

"Then he pushed something that look like silver towards me with his other hand. It looked like a nickel-plated gun. He kept the flashlight shining into my eyes.

"He had a handkerchief over the lower part of his face and at first I couldn't see him.

'GUN TO MY HEAD'

"When he got close to the bed he put his hand over my mouth and then he pressed what I think was the gun to my head. Then he said again, 'Don't you shout for help or I'll finish you':

"Then he said to me: 'How much money have you got? Tell me where it is quick. And don't cry out, remember that.'

"When he came back to the bed he said to me: 'Get up out of that bed and go over into that chair there and sit down.'

"When I went over to the chair and sat down, he said: 'Now put your two hands out in front of you.' He bound them together to the rear of the chair. He bound them so tight it cut my wrist.

FOUGHT AGAINST GAG

"Then he suddenly reached up and put the light on. After that he reached down and picked up my two stockings and pushed one of them into my mouth.

"He took the other stocking and tied it around my mouth. He picked up some other pieces of my clothing and tied them around my eyes.

"Then he calmly sat on the bed. He didn't tie the blindfold quite tight enough and I could barely see what he was doing. Suddenly he said to me: 'I need a drink. Have you got one in the house. If you have, you better tell me where it is.'

"I had a bottle of wine in the closet and I told him by nodding my head in the direction of the closet he would find it there.

MASK DROPS OFF

"When he lifted his mask to drink the wine he must have loosened it, because it dropped down from his face.

"When he came in I also noticed he had gloves on and he kept them on until he took the drink out of the wine bottle.

"When he finished drinking he suddenly came back over to where he had made me sit, and after warning me again to keep quiet he placed his hand over my face and what I think was the revolver to my head. Then he suddenly loosened the ties on my hands.

"He said, 'Now, go back into bed and do what I tell you.'

DOG UNDER HER BED

"When I started back to the bed he made a fresh remark and I told him nothing would stop me from screaming or breaking a window if he continued to make fresh remarks.

"Then he tied me up again tighter than before.

"Finally he said: 'Well, I am going out now, but I'll be back in about 15 minutes and release you. Don't move until I come back.'

"He went out the same way he had come in.

Gagged

Tells Police of Holdup

Miss Anna C. Daniels, 23-year-old secretary, tells Special Officer Joseph Curran of Station 16 how a boudoir bandit bound her to a chair and used her own stocking to gag her. The bandit entered Miss Daniel's room in the Fenway at two o'clock this morning and stole $40.

West Point Tests For Waltham Youth

Edward F. McCabe, 18, of Arlington road, Waltham, was today appointed by Governor Hurley to compete for appointment to the United States Military Academy at West Point.

Early Pickerel Got the 'Worm'

But It Happened to Be Boy's Finger

WESTERLY, R. I., Jan. 17 (AP)—Five-year-old Frankie Tate of this town wagged a bandaged finger at fishermen today and told the strangest fish story of all.

Tired of skating on Blackbird Pond, Frankie cut a hole in the ice, then shoved in his hand to test the temperature.

The hand came out like a shot—with an eight-inch pickerel's teeth still embedded in his forefinger. Frankie had the pickerel for supper.

War Referendum Hit by First Lady

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17 (AP)—Mrs. Franklin Roosevelt criticized the principle of a war referendum today on two counts. She said such a vote by the people is "not in keeping with representative government" and that she does not think it would keep this country out of war.

blinding snow flurries caused the crash.

Slipping as he shoveled snow from the roof of a Green street, Cambridge, garage, Jeremiah Dionne, 21, of College avenue, Somerville, was probably fatally injured when he plunged 15 feet through a skylight, police reported.

GIVEN CHURCH RITES

He was taken to Cambridge City Hospital, where last rites of the Catholic Church were administered by the Rev. John Welsh of St. Mary's church, Cambridge.

Meanwhile, 2000 city public works department employes with 150 trucks and the city's entire force of 270 ploughs, struggled to clear away the drifts which impaired motor traffic, delayed trains and blocked other means of transportation.

At 9 a. m. the weather bureau reported that two-and-a-half inches of snow had been added to last week's 11-inch fall.

According to the forecast, the snow may change to rain this afternoon, but will turn to snow again with an expected drop in the mercury tonight. The fall brought the season's total to 26.5 inches, about 4 inches above normal.

Returning from a tropics cruise with 63 passengers, the liner Lady Drake collided with a fishing trawler as she backed out of Commonwealth pier on her way to St. John, N. B. There was little damage to either vessel and the Lady Drake proceeded. Port officials said high winds and poor visibility caused the bump.

General high-water conditions were reported along the Boston waterfront.

Although shipping was not appreciably delayed, more than 18 inches of water rose above the floor at T and Long wharfs and a half-foot at Central and India wharfs. Police cars ferried persons to the various offices.

The tide at the Charles River dam, where high water jammed the locks, was 13.82 feet. It was not expected to rise above 11.5 feet, but strong northeasterly winds sent the surface up.

So high was the water that the New York boat St. John and other docked vessels appeared to be moored at street level.

MAROONED IN QUINCY

In Quincy, the tide reached 11.6 feet, covering the Edgewater drive and marooning two families there for more than four hours.

Cars were stalled and traffic impeded there and along Sea street, Terne road and Wollaston boulevard, where several families were reported cut off. There was little damage.

Similar scenes were reported along Shore drive, at Shore Beach, Revere, where nearly a foot of water covered the road.

Storm warnings to small coastal craft from Sandy Hook, N. J., to Eastport, Me., were issued by the weather bureau. The disturbance is moving eastward from the Ohio valley.

Woman Slayer Balks at 'Lie' Detector Test

Prosecutor Says She Killed Rich Partner To Get Papers

DETROIT, Jan. 17 (INS)—The amazing Julia Barker, one-time millionaire real estate operator, today again balked authorities in their effort to break down her story that she killed in self defense, her alleged partner in a Kentucky realty swindle, Mrs. Edith Mae Cummings.

Mrs. Barker, described as "cool as a cube of ice," promised to take a lie-detector test, but when Prosecutor Duncan C. McCrea announced she would be submitted to one, she refused to take it.

Chief Assistant Prosecutor William Dowling scoffed at her claim that she killed Mrs. Cummings, also a one-time millionaire real estate operator, in self-defense.

"There is no doubt that Mrs. Barker killed Mrs. Cummings and planned every detail of the crime in advance," Dowling declared. "We believe Mrs. Cummings had certain papers which Mrs. Barker had signed, exonerating Mrs. Cummings in the Kentucky swindle.

"We know that Mrs. Barker built a fire shortly after the killing and burned some papers. We think Mrs. Barker obtained them from Mrs. Cummings at the point of a gun."

Mrs. Barker refused on Sunday to go over the scene of the crime with police.

After remaining on a "sit-down strike" in a police car for nearly two hours Sunday at the scene of the crime, while 1500 persons gathered, the 45-year-old mother answered detectives' questions with a cold stare, remarking:

"You're supposed to solve crimes. Why bother me?"

Returned to jail, Mrs. Barker was confronted in her cell by Robert and Thomas Cummings, the two grown sons of Mrs. Cummings. Leaving the cell, Thomas declared:

"She is a cruel, heartless woman. She showed no remorse and was as cold as a cube of ice."

Dean Plans Trip On 16th Day

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Jan. 17—Dean Israel Harding Noe, of St. Mary's Episcopal Cathedral, packed his bags today preparatory to going to Knoxville to attend a three-day diocesan convention, thus upsetting fears of his friends that he was ready to collapse as the result of his 16-day 'total' fast.

The dean scoffed at the fears and warnings of his friends and parishioners, declaring he was going to take an active part in the diocesan proceedings.

To prove he was equal to the trip he shook hands vigorously with several callers.

In a farewell sermon he explained his fast by declaring that the church needs to offer living proof of man's immortality to bring doubters to its services.

Nancy Floated By Flood Tide

Resisted All Removal Efforts 11 Years

The northeast gale and an exceptionally high tide today accomplished what 11 years of work had failed to do—it floated the hulk of the schooner Nancy off Nantasket Beach.

Imbedded in the sand since she was wrecked in a similar storm in 1927, the old five-master has resisted all efforts to move her from the shore.

After all attempts at salvage were unsuccessful, the Nancy was used for a time as a tea room. Later she was dismantled, her masts removed, she survived several fires, and finally was partially broken up for firewood by the WPA.

The heavily-timbered hulk, however, remained immovable in the sand until yesterday's flood tide started it from its resting place and during the night it finally floated clear.

Coastguardsmen planned to tow it away after the gale subsided.

Young Mother Off to Coast

NEWBURYPORT, Jan. 17—Somewhere on the road to California today is Mrs. Jean Racki, 19, who returned to her Newburyport home just long enough yesterday to pack some clothes, kiss her 15-month-old son in his crib, then bid him farewell.

The girl-wife had been met in Gardner by her husband, Alex Racki of Horton street, Newburyport, after she was found in the Worcester county city Friday night by police. She and her son were taken back to Newburyport by Racki yesterday.

Soon after the family's return to their Horton street apartment in Newburyport, Mrs. Racki packed some clothing and fled from the house.

"This is the fifth time she has left me," said Racki. "I am not going to look for her this time. I shall keep the house open for her for a while and she can come back if she wants.

"But if she stays away, I'll get a divorce. I won't give up the child, either."

'Burglar' Only A Harvard Man

He Wants Quiet, but Nobody Gets It

A Harvard student whose only desire was to be quiet and unobtrusive was today accredited with:

1—Bringing into action the entire Cambridge police department.

3—Losing all chance for sleep for himself and the members of his household.

The youth, whose name was withheld, told police he studied all night for mid-year exams and that at dawn he went out for air. Returning, he found he had forgotten his key and so as not to disturb anyone, he started to climb in a back window.

An early-rising neighbor saw him and called police. A squad of officers surrounded the house and caught the youth.

Watson Weighs 'Swap Wife's' Love Plea

Declares She Went to Lee Only to Arouse Mate's Jealousy

Calvin Watson, one of the four principals in the "wife-swap" case, scheduled to resume tomorrow in Salem Probate Court, is engaging in a struggle with Cupid following the plea of his wife, Mrs. Estelle M. Watson, that he let by-gones be bygones and take her back.

Despite the fact that Mrs. Watson admitted in court she was unfaithful with Raymond Lee, her husband's friend, she insists she loves only Watson and wants to "kiss and make up."

STILL IN LOVE

"I love Calvin more now than I ever did since I first met him," Mrs. Watson said. "I have tried to drive him out of my mind but I love him. That's all there is to it and he knows it.

"I was unfaithful to my husband with Lee because I wanted to make him jealous of me. And I thought that was the only way to arouse him. But all the time, and now, I was and am, deeply in love with him."

Mrs. Watson declared that worry over the loss of her husband's love has caused her to lose fifteen pounds and to spend sleepless nights.

"I am telling the truth when I say that I love him and him alone," continued Mrs. Watson, "and I have certainly paid dearly in the matter. I have lost my reputation, my baby and the husband I love. I have paid for my mistake and will go back and live with him tomorrow if he'll have me."

SOUGHT JEALOUSY

In court, Mrs. Watson testified that her husband had told her to become intimate with Lee and had added that he intended to follow the same course with Mrs. Lee.

"Then it occurred to me that maybe if I did as he told me it would make my husband jealous," stated Mrs. Watson. "I didn't think that my husband could see his wife and mother of his child with another man without some jealousy running through his veins. That is the only reason I did it and I have paid dearly for my error."

Jamaica Oil Row Reaches Tobin

Despite vigorous protests by residents in the neighborhood, a permit to store 5000 gallons of fuel oil was granted the County Coal Company of Boylston street, Jamaica Plain, in the closing days of the Mansfield administration, it was revealed today by new protests.

But when Mayor Tobin, at the behest of the residents, initiated a move to have the street commissioners revoke the permit, he was balked by a supreme court ruling.

According to this ruling, once a permit is granted and approved by the mayor, it cannot be rescinded except by the state fire marshal.

Hearing on a petition by the coal company for a permit to store the fuel oil was held last December 8 and more than 300 Jamaica Plain neighbors appeared in opposition, declaring the oil would be a menace to their safety.

The mayor said that he will call the street commissioners in and demand a reason for their issuance of the permit over the protests.

Stolen Mail Sacks Checked for Clues

They are seeking to determine if any large shipment of securities had been made by banks.

'Gangster Nations' Peril World

Knickerbocker's First War Article

(Editor's note: The full horror of the three wars that have shocked civilization and taken a toll of 1,000,000 lives in the last two years is graphically described in the following article by H. R. Knickerbocker, Pulitzer Prize winning correspondent of International News Service. It is the first in a series of twelve articles, prepared after a 12,500-mile journey from Shanghai to Paris to determine the lessons which lie for America in "The Yellow Typhoon and Red Storm Warnings.")

EXCLUSIVE!

By H. R. KNICKERBOCKER

International News Service Staff Correspondent

(Copyright, 1938, by International News Service throughout the world. Reproduction in whole or part prohibited.)

PARIS, Jan. 17—One million men, women and children are dead. Ten million are refugees.

Great centers of civilization are destroyed.

Three continents have been visited by wars which during the last two years have accomplished these colossal casualties and yet the western world still is asking:

"When will the great war come?"

A great war is upon us already. Abyssinia, Spain and now China are battlefields for the initial skirmishes of growing disaster. In Spain, half a million have fallen or been butchered behind the lines. In Abyssinia, already half-forgotten, deaths among natives must by now have reached hundreds of thousands. In China, the death-roll across a continent has in six months approached at least a half million.

In all three war-stricken countries the civilian population has suffered most of all and a figure of 10,000,000 refugees would be the barest minimum for a world which from our vantage point still firmly declares it is at peace.

I have just circumscribed an area containing around 1,500,000,000 human beings—three-fourths of the population of the earth. From London to Shanghai by air is 10,000 miles. From Shanghai via Tokyo, Vladivostock and the trans-Siberian railway through Moscow and to Paris is 12,000 miles.

WARS IMPACT

Within this circumference of 22,000 miles these three-fourths of the population of the earth are today shuddering under the impact of war.

America is the farthest away from it. Separated by two oceans from the initial skirmishes, we believe we are the safest of all peoples. We are. But does that mean we are safe at all?

For the third time in three years I have come back from war—first Abyssinia, then Spain and now China.

And I now am more than ever impressed by the fact that no nation is safe which is not able, with its own arms, to defend itself from aggression by those gangster nations which, although comprising less than one-tenth the population of the earth, nevertheless are determined to overpower, rob and subjugate the rest.

They can only hope so to do by overwhelming force of mechanical armaments. Japan with her eighty millions is subjugating China's 450,000,000 by a superiority of armaments which gives the Japanese army an actual advantage of at least three to one in volume of fire.

SHANGHAI MIRROR

Shanghai is the mirror for the face of things to come. If we want to know what to expect when the present skirmishes extend into a world war, Shanghai is the place to find out.

For more than three months the shrieks of diving war planes, the whisper of passing shells, the earth-shaking detonations of high explosive air bombs, the boom of naval cannon, the chatter of machine guns and the bark of pom-poms were a daily and nightly melody in Shanghai.

This mad music has passed now into the interior of China, and over a territory as big as half of the United States a population as large as America's is today cringing under explosives and flames flung by the Japanese army.

Left around Shanghai is a band of desolation one mile to four miles deep, peopled now by corpses, starving cats and an occasional imbecile old man or woman where once lived millions of people.

Three million refugees were counted in Shanghai alone—more than in any one city in any war in history. Long after the Japanese conquered Shanghai, in its Chinese areas police and charitable institutions counted an average of 200 fresh corpses daily of civilian men, women and children dead of starvation and exposure.

In the first two months of warfare, more people were killed by air bombs in Shanghai's International Settlement and the French Concession than were killed by all the German air raids on London in the whole four years of the Great War.

In the rubble of Shanghai's periphery already a few families have come back to burrow holes in the wreckage and try to live like cave-dwellers in rags and eating garbage.

This is a picture of a score of lesser cities in China today.

FAR EAST MENACE WORST

I have seen Italians beat Abyssinians, Spaniards tear each other's throats with the murderous hatred of warring brothers and I have seen Japan smash China. But far most menacing for us all is the war in the Far East.

How will the Sino-Japanese war end? What chance has Chiang Kai-Shek?

What signs of coming war have long been bristling along the frontier of Siberia and Manchukuo? What will Britain do? What are the real intentions of Japan?

And finally, what should America do to keep peace?

To these questions I have brought no prophetic answer, but submit the information I have gathered during four months in 16 countries.

Part of the information I have secured is reassuring. But much contains a warning that we can not afford to overlook.

Japs Open War In South China

SHANGHAI, Jan. 17 (INS)—The first pitched battle of the war on South China soil broke out today near Canton as Chinese armies claimed major gains in two fronts in North China.

Supported by bombing airplanes and a barrage from warships, from 500 to 800 Japanese marines landed at the mouth of the Canton river, 32 miles from Canton.

Chinese reinforcements were rushed to the scene in an attempt to repel the invaders.

At the same time Japanese warships bombarded Suncheong, just north of the Portuguese colony of Macao.

To protect the 82 Americans in Chefoo, the United States cruiser Marblehead rushed to Chefoo there from Tsingtao following the American consul's report that disorders had broken out.

Chinese Warned To Quit Japan

TOKYO, Jan. 17 (INS)—The Chinese consul at Yokohama today notified all Chinese citizens there to be prepared to leave Japan this Thursday, a dispatch from that seaport said.

This indicated that an open break in diplomatic relations between Japan and China may be imminent. It lent credence to a previous report that the Chinese embassy here has booked passage to China for the ambassador and his entire staff.

The passage was said to have been reserved on the liner Empress of Asia, scheduled to sail from Yokohama Thursday, January 20. It was presumed the Chinese residents in Yokohama and many from other Japanese cities would sail aboard the same ship.

Probe Breen 'Tie' With Police

Reports that a high police official was under investigation in connection with the slaying of David J. "Beano" Breen, South End racketeer, were revealed today by Police Commissioner Joseph F. Timilty.

Timilty told the Boston Evening American at his home that he was investigating the reports but would make no official statement until later in the day.

The sensational reports, said to have been gathered by Patrolman John C. Bresnahan, special investigator for Governor Hurley, intimated that the high police official had been at a stag party with Breen a few hours before the racket leader was mowed down by bullets in the lobby of the Metropolitan Hotel December 17.

Only two weeks ago, both Governor Hurley and Bresnahan denied that any separate investigation of the Breen slaying was being made for the governor.

Rhodes Will 100 Million Plan Upset by His Heirs

The attempt of the late Edgar L. Rhodes of Brookline, grocer, to establish a $100,000,000 trust fund, the largest ever dreamed of in the United States, was shattered today by the joint action of his prospective beneficiaries.

Last September, when Rhodes will was filed in Dedham Probate Court, it provided that his estate of $550,000 shoudl be invested and reinvested until the principal reached the staggering total of $100,000,000. Publicity and excitement resulted from the unusual document.

It provided that when the fund had reached that figure four-fifths of the income should be paid annually to Gordon College of Theology and Missions in Boston, and one-fifth to the New England Baptist Hospital.

Rhodes had been deacon of Tremont Temple Baptist Church for 35 years.

BULK TO WIDOW

By the agreement of the beneficiaries filed today in Dedham court the following division of the property will be made.

Mrs. May Rhodes, the widow, will receive all her husband's personal property, furnishings, silver, jewelry, autos, house and property in Boston and Brookline and the income of a $100,000 trust fund. On her death the trust fund principle will be divided equally between the Tremont Temple Baptist Church and the Baptist Home of Massachusetts.

Also at her death, the proceeds of the sale of the property bequeathed her will go four-fifths to the Gordon College and one-fifth to the New England Hospital.

Mrs. Helen R. Lane, Rhodes' daughter in Wellesley, will receive the income from a similar $100,000 trust fund, at her death the principal to go to the Gordon College.

GIRLS GET $200,000

Two granddaughters, Elizabeth and Eloise, are to divide the income from a $200,000 trust fund. At their deaths, three-fifths of the principle is to go to Gordon College, three-twentieths to the New England oHspital, and five-twentieths be reinvested till it reaches $100,000. Of the income, four-fifths goes to Gordon and one-fifth to the hospital.

Disposing of the residue of the estate in one of the most complicated will dispositions ever filed at probate court, it was decided to make further trust funds of which the income is to be paid four-fifths to Gordon and one-fifth to the hospital.

Soviet Purge Aides Warned

Zealous informers Face Arrest Also

MOSCOW, Jan. 17 (AP)—An article in the Communist party newspaper Pravda today warned militant [illegible] informers [illegible] that they were liable to arrest themselves.

The article, by the influential writer Mikhail Koltsoff, denounced [illegible] misfortunes of innocent persons drawn into the net of the government's purge of opposition elements.

It followed disclosure of the removal of Boris Shumiatsky as head of the Soviet motion picture industry. Attempts to inject sex interest and political propaganda into a production of "Treasure Island" were among the causes for the removal.

The newspaper Soviet Art said Shumiatsky tried to give a political touch to the Stevenson classic and criticized story changes which transformed Cabin Boy Jim Hawkins to a girl—Jenny Hawkins—who appeared in the pirate scenes with romantic songs about high life.

Substitution of bus lines for trolleys was found advisable. Buses cost six cents a mile less to run than street cars, the commission found.

Trackless trolleys met the commission's disapproval. The present methods of installing the double trolley wires, with a third wire retained for use of regular trolley cars, cost more than the new vehicles save, it reported.

NEAR PUBLIC OWNERSHIP

Purchase of the Chelsea division of the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway was a good investment, raising revenues 3.93 per cent, it was shown.

The Elevated is already far along the way to public ownership, Webber reported. The Boston metropolitan district now holds "El" obligations of about $55,000,000, and when bonds falling due in the next nine years are taken care of, the district's total will be $71,000,000.

The privately owned common stock is worth at par only $23,879,4900, but an option is now held permitting the state to acquire it for $20,000,000.

At market prices the stock is worth about $12,000,000, Webber said and if replaced by state guaranteed bonds the saving in interest would be approximately $900,000 annually.

Increased coal prices will cost the Elevated $100,000 next year. Taxi drivers who take loads of workers intown daily result in a loss to the "El" of $60,000 annually, the report added.

Call Chautemps In Paris Crisis

PARIS, Jan. 17 (INS)—Camille Chautemps, who was forced to resign as premier last week when Socialists rebelled at his conservative financial policies, agreed again today to try formation of a cabinet.

Although he had once before refused, and two other premier-designates had failed to end France's political crisis, Chautemps promised President Lebrun he would attempt to gain sufficient centrist support in Parliament to permit his government to stand up.

Leon Blum, Socialist, who tried to line up a leftist-centrist cabinet, failed earlier today because he lacked a finance minister.

Afterwards he issued a stinging communique blaming the Radical Socialist party. He could have formed a purely "Popular Front" government, Blum insisted, but the Radical Socialists would not tolerate Communist participation.

Soviets Cheer Blast at Japs

MOSCOW, Jan. 17 (AP)—The Supreme Soviet, Russia's new parliament, today cheered a speech demanding a stronger policy toward Japan in a session devoted to reorganization of the highest administrative organs of the state under the new constitution.

The deputies frequently rose to their feet shouting as Andre Zhdanoff, leader of the Leningrad Communist party and close associate of Joseph Stalin, called for a "more determined" front toward "the hooligan acts" of the "agents of Japan and her puppet, Manchoukuo." Stalin looked on.

Zhdanoff also called on the government "to look into" France's alleged toleration of anti-Soviet terrorist organizations.

Michael Kalinin and Vyacheslaff Molotoff were chosen for posts similar to those they held under the pre-constitution regime, corresponding to president and premier respectively.

DeValera Starts Anglo-Eire Talks

Huge Crowd Hails Irish Diplomats; Friendly Air as Conferences Open

LONDON, Jan. 17 (INS)—While street crowds cheered for a united Ireland, conversations between the British government and the leaders of Eire got under way in a friendly atmosphere at 10 Downing street today.

Heading the Irish delegation was Eammon De Valera, long President of the Irish Free State and now Prime Minister of Eire, the new independent Irish nation which wishes to add Ulster to its domain.

APPARENNT CORDIALITY

A brief statement merely said the conversations had started at 2:30 p. m. Beyond the fact that superficial cordiality was apparent, there was no immediate indications as to the trend the talks were taking.

De Valera and his associates were obviously gratified by the unexpected public demonstration which greeted their arrival in Downing street.

A huge crowd gathered and pressed toward Chamberlain's official residence with cries of "Up De Valera!" and "Give Ireland a Republic!" as the delegates arrived. A police cordon was needed to keep the crowd in check.

The discussions were held over the same table where David Lloyd George, Michael Collins and Arthur Griffith brought about the birth of the Irish Free State years ago.

PARTITION QUESTION

De Valera was expected to lose no time in bringing up the troublous question of the division of Ireland and the British had their plans carefully mapped.

Quick results were not expected on either side, but the Irish emphasized that De Valera will not yield on the partition issue in return for whatever trade concessions Britain may be willing to give.

"I hope for improved relations between our two countries," De Valera was quoted at saying, "but we cannot expect to solve fundamental differences in a few days."

De Valera was represented as convinced that there can never be a final settlement without a united Ireland.

Britain is especially eager to win assurances from Eire that Ireland will never be used as a base for foreign enemy operations against Britain. England also wants to maintain the right to use military, naval and air facilities in Eire in event of a war.

In return for such concessions, De Valera would [illegible] an end to the tariff war waged by Britain since Ireland's refusal to continue payment of land annuities.

Irish circles suggested that even a public statement by the British government, favoring in principle an end to the separation of Ulster, would be a long step forward.

MERE STATEMENT HELPFUL

If the British would agree that unity of Ireland is desirable, a great deal could be accomplished in the fields of common defense and trade.

It also proposed that as initial step there might be an agreement between Ulster and Eire to form a common council as a symbol of unity, which also could evolve into a complete union.

Still another suggestion on the Irish side was creation of an all-Ireland Parliament, but with Ulster retaining all her present powers.

South Boston parents today asked coasting safety for their children following the death of one child and injuries to four others on Telegraph street since the last snow storm.

U. S. Anti-Racial Group Hit By Straus

Jewish Leader Warns 2500 of Political 'Balance Ticket'

Roger W. Straus, co-chairman of the National Conference of Jews and Christians, last night challenged a Faneuil Hall throng to fight forces at home, as well as abroad, which threaten liberty.

"Dangers come not only from abroad, where two theories of government deny individual rights and the democratic form of government, but more subtly from forces at home endeavoring to twist the meaning of the Constitution for selfish ends," said Straus.

More than 2500 persons observing the 150th anniversary of the Constitution heard the noted Jewish citizen warn against the "balance ticket" method of politicians to draw votes from religious or racial groups.

"There is danger that from a positive religious test of this kind there may come a 'negative' test which will destroy freedom of worship. Americans want no tests in their citizenship whatsoever, of race, color or creed."

Governor Hurley and Mayor Tobin praised the writers of the Constitution for providing America its democratic government.

"As long as the Constitution of these United States remains the vital life force it is, pogroms will be unknown, persecutions will be abhorred and cruelties and oppressions against races will be impossible under the stars and stripes!" asserted Mayor Tobin.

The Rev. Michael J. Ahern, S. J., compared troubles in other lands of Jews and Irish, both accustomed, he said, to persecutions as minorities.

"I am proud as an humble Catholic priest to testify to the fine public spirit of my Jewish fellow citizens," Father Ahern said. "You are indeed my brother Americans."

Alexander Brin, editor of the Jewish Advocate, presided at the observance. Other speakers included the Rev. Everett C. Herrick, president of the Boston Federation of Churches; Dr. Albert Bushnell Hart, professor emeritus of Harvard; Joseph G. Brin and Commissioner of Education James G. Reardon.

A severe sore throat prevented Lieutenant Governor Francis E. Kelly from speaking.

$2000 Bond Set In Guns Case

FALL RIVER, Jan. 17—Joseph Anselmo, 28, of Somerset, today was held in total bail of $2000 for a continued hearing next Monday on charges of receiving stolen property and carrying concealed weapons.

Arrested Saturday, when two allegedly stolen revolvers were found in his possession, according to police, Anselmo was arraigned before Judge Benjamin Cook in Second District Court.

Attending the hearing were Inspectors Edward J. Kiley and Thomas Mahoney of Somerville police. The guns are alleged to have been stolen from the William C. Barry trucking company in Somerville last March, and the inspectors held a warrant charging Anselmo with breaking and entering.

They said they would arrest Anselmo on this charge and take him to Somerville if he managed to obtain bail.

Aid to Palestine By U. S. Jews

NEW YORK, Jan. 17 (INS)—A resolution pledging cooperation in bringing about a "just, equitable and workable solution" of the racial problem in Palestine, was adopted at the 31st annual session of the American Jewish Committee here.

The resolution, however, rejected the plan for partition of Palestine in which the country would be divided, part for the Arabs, part for Jews.

The session, attended by 350 delegates, will take up the problems relating to the protection of civil and religious rights of Jews throughout the world.

Torch Murder by DiStasios Exacts Its Toll Tonight

Hewitt Heiress Seeks Divorce

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 17 (AP)—Ann Cooper Hewitt Gay had a call in for her lawyer today to bring to a legal end her three-month-old marriage to 34-year-old Ronald Gay, $200-a-month garage foreman.

At the same time she announced her determination to marry again "when the right man comes along."

The heiress, whose father was Peter Cooper Hewitt, millionaire New York inventor, sent her engagement ring back to her estranged husband yesterday.

Mrs. Gay, who filed a $500,000 suit in 1935 against her mother and two San Francisco doctors, charging they had tricked her into a sterilization operation, said she wanted an annulment of the marriage—or a divorce if that fails.

Friends said "too much interference" on the part of "certain friends on both sides" spoiled the marriage.

Gay said he was not planning to communicate with Ann.

300 Labor Men Hit Sales Tax

More than 300 delegates, representing 240,000 members of progressive and liberal state labor organizations, placed themselves on record today as unanimously opposed to the proposed Massachusetts state sales tax after a conference for Social Legislation at the Hotel Brunswick.

The conference, which included representatives from both the CIO and the A. F. of L., is viewed as one of the most important of its kind ever held in the Commonwealth and, as a result, its opposition to the tax will be far reaching in its effects.

One of the salient contentions which caused the delegates to voice their unanimous opposition was that the tax would place an unfair burden on those who are least able to bear it. References were made to the workings of similar taxes now in force in other states.

Fay Contempt Action Threat

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 17 (INS)—Unless Frank Fay is permitted to see his adopted son tomorrow, a contempt of court citation will be asked against Barbara Stanwyck, noted film star, attorneys for Fay announced today.

Fay failed to receive a court-ordered visit from five-year-old Dion Anthony Fay, though Judge Goodwin J. Knight stipulated the boy be brought to Fay's home.

It was explained in Miss Stanwyck's behalf by her counsel that inasmuch as the film star had appealed the case, it was not intended to comply with the court order.

Fay's attorney indicated that a show-down in the case can be expected tomorrow, the next day named in Judge Knight's order that the actor may see his son.

DiStasios Die Tonight; Hurley Denies Mercy

the plot to kill Daniel Crowley of the West End in May, 1935, in order to collect insurance. Crowley was burned to death in an automobile in Hudson.

Warden Francis J. W. Lanagan was expected to tell young DiStasio of the governor's action as soon as he was officially notified.

Earlier today the [illegible] Attorney Scharton [illegible] at the prison while walking from the administration building to the "death house" to visit the doomed pair.

A 26-page letter written by Anthony which Scharton [illegible] to give to Governor Hurley [illegible] a last-minute appeal, was the basis for the row.

Warden Lanagan refused to turn it over on demand of the attorney shortly after the latter's arrival at the prison.

The son was found guilty of being an accessory before the fact to the "torch" murder in Hudson but as Governor Hurley pointed out in his statement, "the mandatory penalty is death in the electric chair." The father was convicted of first degree murder.

Also brought out by the governor was that successive reprieves were granted by him, with the consent of the executive council, pending [illegible] made to the state and United States Supreme Courts.

Young DiStasio was placed in cell No. 1 in "death row" and, accordingly, will be the first to walk the "last mile." His father is in the second cell.

Both DiStasios ate macaroni, meat balls, bread and butter, rice pudding, tea and milk for lunch.

For their last supper they requested vegetable salad, bread and butter, apple pie, coffee and milk.

CHAPLAIN IN VISIT

Rev. Ralph W. Farrell, chaplain of the prison and spiritual adviser to the pair, spent most of the day in prayer and spiritual advice with the father and son.

When Attorney Scharton left the prison, prior to the governor's announcement, he said the son had "some hope for commutation."

The father, he declared, was praying.

In leaving the prison, Attorney Scharton told newspapermen that the 26-page appeal written by Anthony, which the warden refused to surrender, had been addressed to him.

WRIT IS ASKED

Attorney Scharton sped to the Supreme Court where he asked Justice Arthur W. Dolan for a writ of mandamus to compel Warden Lanagan to produce the signed statement of Anthony.

The lawyer told the court the statement would aid in getting a reprieve.

Justice Dolan told the attorney that Justice Henry T. Lummus handled the DiStasio case in several of a series of five appeals for a new trial which delayed the execution.

Attorney Scharton went on a tour of the city in an effort to locate Justice Lummus in a race against time in this last minute effort.

SUIT THREATENED

"I'm going to bring suit for those papers. I'm going into court and get a writ of mandamus," Scharton told the warden as they walked along the snowy path.

"Under the rules of the institution I can censor all mail," was Warden Lanagan's reply.

Scharton retorted, just before the pair entered the "deathhouse."

"It's not mail. They are memoirs telling about the crime and they may save the boy's life."

In 10 minutes Attorney Scharton came out after talking to Anthony and his father.

WON'T SAVE SON

"The elder DiStasio refuses to save his son from the electric chair," were the attorney's first words.

"He said he loved his son so much that he didn't want to leave him behind."

Scharton quoted the elder DiStasio as saying:

"I am ready to die and I love my son better than anything else in the world. I'm going to take him with me."

"Has he anything to do with the crime?" Sharton said he asked the father.

"No," was the condemned man's reply, according to the lawyer.

"Why don't you help him?" Sharton said he asked him.

"He will be better dead. That is my religion," Scharton quoted the father as saying.

DECISION WAITED

The son told Warden Lanagan, according to Scharton, that if Governor Hurley intimated in any way that his father's life may be saved he would shoulder all the responsibility for the crime which [illegible] both to the electric chair.

Scharton said Anthony told the warden:

"I love my father and that is why I am in this predicament."

Meanwhile, with her husband and father-in-law doomed to die only hours away, Mrs. Shirley DiStasio of Revere went into seclusion today "until the execution is over."

Fighting back tears, she told a Boston Evening American reporter:

"I still have hope my husband's life will be saved. I can see no way out for him, however, unless the Governor acts quickly."

LOCATION SECRET

Still loyal Mrs. DiStasio, a frequent visitor to the deathhouse, last saw her husband Saturday.

"I usually cry when I talk about it," she declared, "but I'm getting a little harder now.

"I have gone through so much now that holding my chin up has become habitual.

"Since all attempts to save him have failed, I will leave immediately to some far place until the execution is over."

NEW YORK, Jan. 17 — Subway service under the East River between Manhattan and Brooklyn was restored today after water from a leaking main flooded the tracks, suspending service for an hour. Bar 28 Numbers In Pool Play

Hard pressed by three weeks of continuous "hits," Boston number writers retrenched further today by barring 28 of the most popular numbers.

The move followed cuts made last week on certain favorite numbers from the previous 600 to 1 odds to 500 to 1 and as low as 100 to 1.

Big hits, as well as fines, bail money and lawyers' fees led operators to put the lower payoff ranges into effect, it was reported.

"Barnacle Bill's" Death Saga of Broken Heart

By ROBERT L. GREEN

One of the waterfront's most tragic figures was "Barnacle Bill," who until a few years ago padded forlornly along the Army Base pier waiting for a ship that never came. Waited until claimed by one who never waits: death.

"Barnacle Bill" was a nondescript, huge, gray alley cat with an unnatural penchant for the sea, for whom the Army Base was the pinnacle of joy and the abyss of despair.

For it was the Army Base that gave Bill his chance to go to sea. And it was the Army Base that lost him his only ship.

A rust-scabbed American freighter was tied up at the Army Base one day unloading when Bill strolled from the shadows of the huge cargo shed.

GOT ON BOARD

Bill dodged the cargo slings that were thumping the deck, marched grandly to the gangplank and in three bounds was on board.

The ship's quartermaster spent the remainder of the day trying to put the cat ashore, but Bill was determined to "sign on," and he always found his way back on board and never tried to hide.

The next day the freighter sailed down the harbor. Perched in the bow Bill kept a sharp watch.

Dock workers had forgotten about Bill when one day after nearly six months the old tramp freighter returned to the port. Longshoremen recognized the familiar figure of Bill perched up on the bridge.

Then they noticed a peculiar thing. Bill went to each of the opened hatches, peered down for a brief second as if estimating the cargo content and walked blithely off the ship.

Crew members reported that this was Bill's great stunt going [illegible] and he seemed uncannily able to judge the time necessary to unload the ship and always got down to the pier five minutes before sailing time.

BACK FOUR TIMES

Within the space of three years, Bill returned to the Army Base about four times. When Bill went ashore on the fourth occasion it was decided to unload part of the cargo at the ship's next port of call, and as a result the ship was able to clear hours earlier than usual.

Longshoremen still talk of the way Bill just stared at his former home as it steamed out of sight and out of his life.

The ship never returned here.

Bill lost his sleek appearance, his eyes dulled but he never gave up his heartbreaking vigilance on the pier until one day he was found frozen to death not far from the spot he had first gone aboard "his" ship.

Blonde Is Held in 'Biting Robbery'

A 29-year-old Cambridge blonde whom police said was bitten on the shoulder by her victim, pleaded not guilty in municipal court today to robbery of $108. She was held in $2000 bail.

The woman, Eleanor Morse of Memorial drive, was arrested after William Zodor, 37, of Main street, Worcester, told police he had been attacked by the woman and three men.

When the woman's counsel asked for reasonable bail, Judge Elijah Adlow declared:

"You must realize this is a serious charge. The woman apparently brought this man to Boston and put him on the spot."

Zodor told police that in attempting to save his $1000 diamond ring he had bitten the woman's shoulder.

Ann Marsters Finds Lynn Worried Over Shoe Crisis

'Lucky' We Work, Girls Tell Writer

Stitchers, Packers Air Plight as More Factories Close

(This is the second of a series by Ann Marsters on industrial conditions in Lynn and their effect on girl workers).

By ANN MARSTERS

The room is filled with the warm scorching scent of irons and the whirr of stitching machines. Row upon row of racks holding various pieces of shoes, are lined up beside girl stitchers, heads bent intently over their work.

This is the clean, sunny shoe factory of Colella and Leighton in Broad street, Lynn—and it is one of the very few factories here which is operating on a full time schedule. Others, many others, lie idle and empty, their owners having moved to other factories in other cities.

And the shoe industry in Lynn, which used to constitute more than 70 per cent of Lynn's business, is now only one-third of it.

Mayor J. Fred Manning lays most of the blame on the fact that "inducements" have been offered by some cities in the form of free rent and free taxes, to lure industries into their empty plants.

"LUCKY" TO HAVE JOBS

But the girl workers themselves know little or nothing about such causes. They only know that they are "very lucky" to have jobs while so many of their friends are victims of closed or transplanted factories.

When they work steadily, fancy stitchers can average from $18 to $25 a week.

"We don't expect an awful lot, these days," said one young girl named Concetta D'Alessandro. "But we have to have enough money to live on. We have to buy clothes and pay rent and contribute to the family budget. And we aren't dissatisfied when things are going along smoothly."

"But the trouble is," said another girl, "things seem to be so uncertain. Everyone is saying what a terrible state the shoe industry is in. I have a brother and a sister who used to work in a shoe factory. But it's closed now and they can't get work—and my salary has to help support them."

JOBLESS LIST SOARS

There are similar cases in many Lynn families as the list of unemployed swells to unprecedented heights.

We found, of course, contradictory opinions as to the whys and wherefores of shoe factories leaving Lynn—but now we present the manufacturer's viewpoint as expressed by the owner of Colella and Leighton, Mr. Pasquale Colella himself.

"Men do not move their factories," he said, "if they are satisfied with local conditions. They do not move merely because some other city offers them free rent. They move because they are hounded to death by the local unions of Lynn."

There are, we learned, seven of these local unions—one for each class of workers. Cutters, stitchers, lasters, edgemakers, heelers, packers, and wood heel makers.

"And each union," said Colella, "has at least one, and sometimes three representatives. Their salaries are paid by the unions—and it is evidently their business to continually stir up trouble among the workers.

"If they would leave the manufacturers alone, the shoe industry here would not be in such a decline. But I positively believe that factories have moved because the unions have failed to keep their agreements with the manufacturers.

"They are constantly trying to squeeze out a cent more here and there, until the manufacturer is forced to move to some place where labor conditions are more favorable."

From Mr. Colella's statement it seems that Lynn is much too "strike conscious," that you have only to blow a whistle outside a factory and the workers will come running out. Not that Colella doesn't believe in organized labor. He says he most certainly does. But he also believes in "common sense."

"That's the only answer and the only solution," he said, "just common sense on the part of the unions, the government, and the manufacturers."

Mr. Colella, who is better known as "Patsy," is a pleasant man with a friendly, beaming countenance. He is very popular with the union heads and with his employes, because he is fair-minded and agreeable to all reasonable demands. But he still wants the union to "leave him alone."

(Another article on conditions in Lynn will be printed in tomorrow's Boston Evening American.)

RUTH CRAVEN

ANN MARSTERS

The shoe factory worker knows little as to the causes of why Lynn has faded from its former greatness as a shoe city, Ruth Craven, an employe of the Bender Shoe company, tells Ann Marsters, Boston Evening American special writer, as they discuss the plight of a girl worker.

Concetta D'Alessandro, packer at the Colella and Leighton Shoe company, gives the shoes their last deft touch before they are slid into boxes. Concetta likes her job, feels that she is "lucky" to be working, but is disturbed no little by the uncertainty of conditions in other Lynn factories.

Death Sentence Is Demanded On Holdings

Power Bloc Moves to Seek Action at This Congress Session

(Copyright, 1938)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17 (INS)—Leaders of congressional power blocs today announced they would seek President Roosevelt's approval for legislation to carry out his "death sentence" this session upon all holding companies.

They acknowledged uncertainty over the President's attitude.

They backed away, moreover, from the offer of President Wendell L. Willkie of the Commonwealth & Southern Corp. to sell the government its operating utilities in the Tennessee Valley at a negotiated or arbitrary price. Willkie termed his offer "a last resort in a desperate situation."

SEES POWER "PLOT"

They indicated there was no likelihood of legislation now or in future authorizing acceptance of the offer on Willkie's terms.

Senator Schwellenbach (D.) of Washington, said he construed the proposition as an attempt by Willkie "to panic utility investors and put the administration behind the eight ball."

Rep. Rankin (D) of Mississippi, chairman of the house public power group, said he would consult the President this week on a bill "taxing holding companies out of existence, particularly in the utilities field."

WILL OFFER BILL

If the President approves and time allows, Rankin said, he would present the bill to the House ways and means committee as an amendment to the new revenue bill before that measure is reported out.

Otherwise, he indicated, the bill would be offered from the House floor, "depending of course on the attitude of the President and my colleagues."

Senator Norris (Ind.) of Nebraska, the upper chamber's leading public power advocate, said he would support but did not expect to sponsor any "death sentence" tax in the Senate.

His allies in the power fight, Senators Bone (D) of Washington, Minton (D) of Indiana, and Schwellenbach likewise were awaiting the President's views and House action.

N. H. Truck Strike Halts Freight

METHUEN, Jan. 17—Police ranged along the Massachusetts side of the New Hampshire border today and strike pickets on the other as a truck drivers' strike in the latter state tied up shipment of hundreds of tons of freight.

Methuen police were rushed to the state line about three miles north of Rockingham race track, where reports came that strike pickets were halting trucks from Massachusetts into New Hampshire.

At the line it was found that four representatives of the Chauffeurs and Teamsters Union of Manchester were on the Massachusetts side halting trucks and warning the drivers that a strike was in progress in New Hampshire.

No attempts were made, however, to prevent the trucks proceeding and most of them turned back.

Captain Joseph Hutchinson of the Methuen police issued orders that the pickets were not to stop trucks on the Massachusetts side, so the pickets stepped back into New Hampshire and continued to warn northbound drivers.

There was no disorder reported.

Although there has been no dissension reported among truck drivers on the Massachusetts side, President John T. O'Neil of the Chauffeurs and Teamsters Union in Lawrence said a conference of Lawrence representatives had been called today to discuss the New Hampshire strike.

3 Governors Aid Murphy Memorial

WINCHESTER, N. H., Jan. 17 (AP)—Governors of three New England states have accepted invitations to join Governor Francis P. Murphy of New Hampshire tonight in dedicating the Ellen Lambert Murphy Memorial, a $25,000 community center named in honor of his mother.

Governors Charles F. Hurley of Massachusetts, Robert E. Quinn of Rhode Island and George D. Aiken of Vermont were listed as speakers.

Fund Leaders Increase Own Gifts 24 Per Cent

Preliminary survey of the 1938 Greater Boston Community Fund Campaign, made public today by General Chairman Leverett Saltonstall, shows that leaders in the work, among them Cardinal O'Connell, have increased their personal subscriptions an average 24 per cent.

Cardinal O'Connell's pledge has been raised from $5000 to $6000.

"Needless to say, the figures are most gratifying," said Mr. Saltonstall. "The survey was made among chairmen, vice-chairmen and other members of the committees who have for months been working on the foundation and backbone of the organization of more than 15,000 people who will, on January 24, start collecting subscriptions from the public to help reach the $1,500,000 goal.

"The survey shows that these men and women have increased their own individual subscriptions to the extent of 24 per cent.

"When one considers that these same people have for weeks and months been giving of their own personal and business time and also increasing their pledges, it convinces me more than ever that those who get really close to the great work actually feel it.

"Knowing what goes on in the workings of the campaign, they give generously of their funds to help the 100 agencies which help to carry on the good work done in Greater Boston."

Call Four Mayors In Slump Study

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17 (INS)—Seeking the effect of the business recession in industrial areas, the Senate committee investigating unemployment today called on mayors of four principal cities.

They are Fiorello H. LaGuardia, New York; Harold Burton, Cleveland; Angelo Rossi, San Francisco, and Richard W. Reading, Detroit.

Chairman Byrnes (D.) of South Carolina said the committee looked forward to the mayors' testimony as one of the most important phases of the inquiry, now beginning its third week.

Following the testimony of the mayors, the committee will recess for a day to study their recommendations and requirements and then hear from WPA officials.

Filipinos 'Lie Down' In General Strike

MANILA, Jan. 17—Pampanga province today was in the throes of a general strike following the arrest of 129 "lie-down" strikers on a government construction project.

The 129 lay down in the road, preventing passage of trucks. The general strike call was issued following their arrest. Sugar workers of the province were already on strike.

STOCKHOLM, Jan. 17 (AP)—All Swedish hotels were closed today by a strike of 20,000 employes for higher wages and shorter hours.

Small Investors' Strike Hits U. S.

Confidence in Government Dissipated By Destructive Antics, Says Forbes

By B. C. FORBES

New Dealers frantically seeking to blame others for the miserable failure of their "planned" economy recovery, have tried to gull the people into believing that employers, "economic royalists," have gone on strike, and that this and this alone accounts for the appalling spread of unemployment.

There has been a strike, yes.

The strikers, however, are not "monied aristocrats, corporate earls and ducal economic overlords."

The strikers have been and are the citizens who have constituted the backbone of the United States, the citizens who have contributed vitally to enabling this nation to attain unexampled industrial leadership and unmatched wealth, namely, the millions and millions of frugal individuals and families who in the past invested their savings and securities.

B. C. FORBES

This statement will cause national astonishment: Not one dollar has been added to the common capital of any utility company by the sale of a single share of common stock to the public since the beginning of the first term of the present administration, with but ONE exception.

You could search America's whole economic history without finding anything approaching this unenviable record, this reflection of distrust of government by thrifty citizens.

Common Stock Flotation at Par Unlikely Today, Says Bank Chairman

Chairman James H. Perkins, of the National City Bank of New York, declares:

"I know of no corporation of size that could put out an issue of common stock today with any hope of a successful flotation, unless offered below its fair value."

Why? Because of, as he puts it, "General disorder in the economic system."

Chairman Winthrop W. Aldrich, of America's largest banking institution, the Chase National, was more outspoken than Mr. Perkins in blaming the federal administration for the nation's unfortunate plight.

Even the conservative, soft-speaking head of the National City Bank, however, did cite as one cause of the recession "the effect of existing uncertainties in retarding the flow of savings into new industries and private enterprise.

HISTORY WILL SHOW THAT A HEAVILY TAXED COMMUNITY IS NEVER IN THE LONG RUN A PROSPEROUS COMMUNITY."

Why have millions of the nation's most prudent individuals and families gone on an INVESTMENT STRIKE?

Is it that they have entirely lost confidence in foremost men of affairs, in corporation executives, in the men who have built up enterprises in this country transcending in efficiency and effectiveness those of any other country on the face of the earth?

No, that is not the reason.

Investors, little as well as large, have lost confidence in the fairness of the present administration, lost confidence in their attitude towards private enterprise, lost confidence in the outlook for American industry under new deal badgering and baiting, crushing taxation, lopsided labor legislation, and all sorts of repression and persecution.

It may be that the ceaseless maligning of fillers of pay envelopes, the hurling of viciously derogatory epithets at them has furthermore undermined the faith of not a few investors in the men responsible for carrying on business and industry.

One vociferous Washington officeholder recently dubbed men of affairs "dumbbells." (Incidentally, when this same bureaucrat met a utility leader in a public debate, the audience left no room or doubt as to which of the two they regarded as a dumbell.)

How much longer are the American people to be subjected to utterly needless suffering inflicted by the destructive antics of autocratic public "servants?"

Only Washington Can Supply Ingredient Needed for Upturn

The current depression is essentially man-made, politically-made.

We possess practically every ingredient essential to prosperity except one: Confidence.

This ingredient can be supplied only by Washington.

Out of all these conferences now being held by President Roosevelt with men who have played a constructive part in making American great, it is profoundly to be hoped that good will come, that political backbiting will subside, that cooperation will develop, that reemployment will take the place of expanding unemployment, that good times will very shortly supplant the wholly unnecessary bad times now causing so much suffering to our people and imperiling our national future.

Census to Cover Boston Factories

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17 (INS)—Manufacturers in Chicago and Boston industrial areas will be covered by the biennial census of manufacturers starting January 25, the census bureau announced today.

It will cover all manufacturing firms whose products are valued at $5000 or more annually.

Jobless Big N. E. Problem, Says Congressman

New Industries Vital, Fitzgerald Asserts; Would Train CCC

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17 (AP)—One of the most vital problems confronting business and labor today in New England in the opinion of many congressmen from that section is unemployment.

Virtually all of the 12 senators and 29 representatives from New England have taken the floor at one time or another to plead for legislation to aid their section or oppose measures they believed would injure their industries and workers.

Representative Fitzgerald (D.), Connecticut, a member of the House labor committee and ardent supporter of the wage-hour bill, said the solution of New England's industrial prosperity lies in long-time planning.

NEW INDUSTRIES NEEDED

"New England and Connecticut," he said, "should turn to new industries to absorb labor. We must have new industries to replace the textile and shoe plants that have shut down or moved to other parts of the country."

Fitzgerald suggested that the New England states attempt to attract aviation, refrigeration and television industries — "industries which will thrive in the future."

The best way to get new industries, Fitzgerald said, "is to have workmen trained for those industries available."

Fitzgerald, author of an act enabling the labor department to "promote labor standards necessary to safeguard apprentices," said he believed industry should cooperate more closely with apprentices.

WOULD TRAIN CCC

"There is a lack of trained tradesmen and mechanics in this country due partly to bars against their immigration and to the failure of industries to train men," he said.

"Census figures of 1930 showed there were some 750,000 young men and women under 25 employed in skilled trades who were not receiving organized training.

"This is an example of the waste of a huge supply of potential skilled labor.

"Practical men who have themselves learned trades know that skilled mechanics cannot be made by the 'pick-up' method."

Fitzgerald asserted industry should take Civilian Conservation Corps enrollees and make them skilled workmen.

"Industrialists should realize," he said, "that they have to pay their upkeep in the forests anyhow through taxation. Industry is crying for trained men while 300,000 boys are working in the forests."

Criticism Nets Weeks Post

Former Mayor Sinclair Weeks of Newton today was a member of the speakers' committee of the Newton Community Forum, following his criticism of selecting of Arthur Garfield Hays as the speaker for the February 6 meeting.

On that occasion Weeks returned his tickets and charged Hayes was a national director of the American Civil Liberties Union, a group who opponents charge is carrying the banner of Communism.

In accepting his new appointment, Weeks said he was highly pleased but that he would not change his attitude about attending the meeting at which Hays spoke.

Jan. 29 Deadline On Jobless Tax

The Unemployment Compensation Commission today set January 29 as the deadline for submitting 1937 payments in order for Massachusetts employers to obtain federal credit on their 1937 unemployment compensation tax.

"Failure to make payments by this date will mean that the commission will be unable to certify in part or in whole the proof of credit to which employers would otherwise be entitled under the tax-offset system," Secretary Laurence F. Harrington stated.

WHY FALSE TEETH WEARERS HAVE BAD BREATH

Millions Suffer Without Knowing!

You can't notice any odor from your plate or bridge—but others can! Dentists call this odor "denture breath" and it's serious. It comes from a mucin-scum that collects on plates and bridges. This scum is almost invisible—but it can make your breath so bad that friends shudder. It can breed decay-bacteria that infect your other teeth, actually hurt your health and spoil your pleasure.

Ordinary brushing can't get this scum off plate or bridge—can't protect you against "denture breath." But just try Polident! Polident not only cleans—it actually purifies plates and bridges without brushing. It gets every bit of scum, tarnish, stain and odor—dissolves it away and leaves your plate sweet and clean as new.

Your breath will be fresher, your mouth feel cleaner—and your plate last longer and look better. Polident is approved by dental authorities, Good Housekeeping and tens of thousands of delighted users. Long-lasting can costs only 30¢ at any drug store.

POLIDENT Cleans, Purifies Like Magic

Put plate or bridge in ½ glass of water. Add a little Polident powder. Leave in 10 to 15 minutes. Rinse—and it's sweet and purified—ready to use.

Patricia Phelan Honored

SHUFFLING WAX underfoot has become the universal pastime . . . both in town and out . . .

Over the week-end small armies of enthusiasts were out on the snow covered hills . . . slithering their wax coated skis in all the intricate and graceful turns of expert ski running . . .

Yet there were plenty of indoor sportsmen who stayed in town to practice their skill at the intricate and graceful turns of modern dance steps . . . on the well waxed floors of their favorite night clubs or supper rooms . . .

Patricia Phelan, who is soon to depart for a cruise to South America, found herself the center of attention at a large dinner party given in the Balinese Room of the Somerset Friday evening . . . and so many farewells were said that it almost seemed appropriate for someone to decorate Pat with a flower leis . . .

The party was given by Mr. and Mrs. William C. Hotchkins of Brookline . . . and among the younger members of the crowd were Pat's sister, Ginny . . . their house guest, Cackie MacDonald of Georgia . . . Jean Evatt and Jean Clark, sister debs of Patricia's . . .

Reginald Wheeler, Jr., of Buffalo, danced with Jean Evatt, who was becomingly gowned in green and gold lame . . . while the Fitzpatricks, Edward and Don, beaued the Phelan girls . . . Eric Allen and William C. Chick, Jr., were also in the party . . .

Another of Patricia's sister debs, Anne Conant, was in a party at the Towne Club Saturday evening with Baird Hodgkinson . . . She looked very attractive in a costume of deep blue velvet banded with squirrel fur as she whirled around the floor with her escort . . .

Molly Ayer of Milton dropped in at the Towne Club for a bit of post wedding celebration . . . following the afternoon nuptials of Patty Preston and Farley Wheelwright . . . She was escorted by Dick Sprague and made a foursome with Deborah Sprague and Harold F. Kellogg, Jr., who had been an usher at the wedding . . .

Two More Girls Join Ranks of Engaged

Ruth Bennett, Mary Bailey Plan for Weddings

Charity dances and lecture series aren't the only affairs occupying the mid-winter limelight. Parties in honor of future brides are arousing a considerable bit of attention.

Among the gayest of these affairs was the dinner which Mr. and Mrs. George Arthur Bennett of Wakefield gave recently to announce the engagement of their daughter, Ruth Evelyn, to John Maguire, Jr., of Somerville.

Miss Bennett, who has chosen February 22 as her wedding day, was graduated from Wakefield High School and Katherine Gibbs School of Boston.

Mr. Maguire, the son of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Maguire of Somerville, attended Mount Saint Mary's College in Emmetsburg, Md., and was graduated from Holy Cross with the class of 1928.

Dorchester Girl Announces Betrothal

Longwood Towers was the setting for the tea at which Dr. and Mrs. Frederick A. Bailey of Dorchester announced the engagement of their daughter, Mary Romuald, to Richard Lee Hennessey of Brookline.

Acting as pourers at the pre-nuptial affair was a trio of the future bride's most intimate friends: Betty Hennessey of Brookline, Mary Monahan of Dorchester and Hermena Sullivan of Jamaica Plain.

Miss Bailey, who was graduated from Girls' Latin School and Boston Teachers College, is prominent in affairs of the [illegible] Club.

Mr. Hennessey, whose parents are Mr. and Mrs. John J. Hennessey of Brookline, attended St. John's Preparatory School.

Newlyweds Plan Norway Trip

After the first of next month Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Townsend Scudder, Jr., who were married in Covington, Ky., Saturday afternoon, will be at home to their friends at 71 Martin street in Cambridge. They are now taking a short wedding trip and are planning to go to Norway in June after Mr. Scudder completes his graduate work in psychology at Harvard University.

Mrs. Scudder is the former Miss Joan Kerr, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Kerr of Covington, Ky. She attended the Hillsdale School in Cincinnati, and the University of Cincinnati.

Mr. Scudder, who is the son of Mrs. Sturgis Knight of Providence and Theodore Townsend Scudder of Fairfield, Conn., and New York, prepared for college at St. George's School in Newport, R. I., and graduated from Harvard with the class of 1934. He is a member of the Speakers Club and the Hasty Pudding Institute of 1770.

College Gift 'Promise' Kept

$140,000 To Trinity After Recovery

HARTFORD, Conn., Jan. 17 (INS)—William G. Mather, Cleveland millionaire who suffered financial reverses during the depression, presented $140,000 in cash to Trinity College, his alma mater, as the first installment on what he regards as a debt.

In 1929 Mather announced a gift of $2,000,000 to Trinity for a new chapel. The next year the crumbling stock market forced him to cut his gift to half of the amount promised.

The college released Mather from his pledge and in 1932 workmen completed the chapel without pay. Mather, however, regarded his promise as one which could not be broken. His fortune recovered and he started to make good. He said he planned a new $250,000 gift to Trinity for upkeep of the chapel.

Mrs. George Byrne, who is planning the refreshment menu for Wednesday's celebration, was also a guest at the tea. Others attending were Mrs. Joseph Walsh, Mrs. Richard [illegible], Mrs. Harry Garner, Mrs. Arthur Nicholson and Mrs. John Harrington.

Charity Dance Is Planned by Ace of Clubs

Another of the week's delightful informal parties will be the tea which Mrs. William McCarthy, chairman of sponsors for the Ace of Clubs charity supper dance, is giving at her Belmont home Wednesday.

The dance, one of the most important of the pre-Lenten season, is scheduled for February 25 at the Hotel Somerset.

Heading the list of Wednesday's guests is Mrs. Joseph Barry, Jr., of Newtonville, chairman of the dance. Others attending the affair will be the club officers, Gladys Carew of Brookline, Mrs. Charles Donovan of Swampscott, Mrs. Henry Fitzpatrick of Belmont and Marion McCarthy of Brookline.

Mrs. Frederic Sheehan, who was last year's successful president, will attend the affair, at which decorations, supper arrangements and reservations will be discussed. Other committee members gathering for a cup of tea will be Mrs. Andrew J. Porter, Mrs. Clement Dore, Mrs. Willis B. Downey, Mrs. Paul Markey, Mrs. William F. Blake and Mary Field of Salem.

Others who will be guests at the committee meeting will be Mary Haberlin, Mrs. Michael McCarthy, Mrs. Charles Hamilton, Mrs. Vincent Greene, Mrs. Russell Riley, Alice Fitzpatrick and Agnes Fitzgibbons.

Keep it Handy . . . Use it Early

BOSTON after DARK

By GEORGE HOLLAND

WHEN AN ESKIMO marries an American girl, that appeals to this column as news . . . Explorers and trappers have fallen for the charms of Eskimo maidens up thar in the Arctic drifts times too numerous, in fiction and fact, to be unusual . . . But we have today the case of Mussoonuk, the Alaskan dog-driver who drove the mails . . . A handsome buck, and a skilled hand with a kayak, he was imported to America last fall to appear in the Sportsman's Show . . . That's where romance came into the picture.

A charming young miss named Helen C. Hurlburt, who lives in New Hampshire, saw Mussoonuk while he was part of the exhibit, and they became acquainted . . . On April 13 past, Miss Hurlburt became Mussoonuk's bride under the anglicized name of Mrs. James Andrews . . . The ceremony took place in Cornish, N. H., and the couple have been living in an American igloo at Charlestown, N. H., since.

Mrs. Mussoonuk, or Andrews, is reported to be really beautiful . . . As the couple are due to arrive in Boston today, it seems that a fairly interesting feature story—with pictures—is highly possible.

CHATTER:

The state's commissioner of public works, William Callahan, hies toward Miami today for a brief sojourn . . . Mayor Tobin is considering the possibility of making one commissioner do the work which heretofore has been performed by two in the supervision of the penal and city institutions departments . . . More than 400 New England pharmacists have landed in Havana, and Sam Cohen, who is temporarily this paper's correspondent in the Paris of the South, can make himself solid with Boss Colonel Batista of Cuba if he takes this tip . . . On the voyage south aboard the S. S. Rotterdam, Augustus Leonard, one of the pharmacists, wrote a song called "Havana Dream" . . . A mortar-and-pestle quartet is planning to sing it at the good Colonel . . . He oughtta be warned.

DAMON AND PYTHIAS:

The devotion and mutual admiration of two Bostonians who are business partners has become legendary . . . Lately things haven't been going so well, and one creditor has been very persistent . . . The creditor backed one of the partners against the door, and confronted him with a story that the absent partner had promised, on his word, that he would make a substantial payment on the debt.

"He promised me, I tell you," the creditor shouted. "Do you understand what that means? He promised me he'd pay me today."

The partner who was being badgered finally composed his answer.

"Certainly he promised you," agreed the partner. "What a cheap skate he'd be if he wouldn't at least promise!"

ONCE OVER LIGHTLY:

Park Commissioner Thomas A. White of Winthrop has taken a front seat on the Saltonstall-for-Governor bandwagon . . . The press is being "partied" to a fare-thee-well these days. A luncheon today at Dinty Moore's with Mickey Walker, the "toy bulldog" of the ring, is first . . . Sheila Barrett is entertaining at 4:30 p. m., and Cecil B. DeMille's arrival tomorrow touches off a round of functions . . . A reception at the Copley Plaza is set for from 3 to 5 p. m. . . . A preview of the new DeMille picture, "The Buccaneer," will be shown at 7:15, and after the first public showing of the picture, another reception will be held at the Metropolitan Theater . . . La Barrett's invitation read: "On account of I have a week's work, I am giving a waltz at 4:30 Monday afternoon Ritz-Carlton."

Stevie (Gustin) Wallace steps across Shirley Gut to freedom Saturday. He "did it all," except for time off for good behavior . . . Word is that Dr. Henry F. Watts, present Boston health commissioner, will be retained until time for retirement, which is not very distant. Dr. Watts has devoted most of his long career to city work . . . Visitors are praising the receiving-staff at the mayor's office . . . With Connie Reardon taking exemplary care of the important inside job, young William L. Crawford, first assistant secretary, in charge of the outside office, is letting them in, or sending them away, and making them happy whichever it is.

Farris Malouf, first Boston city department head of Syrian birth, may go out of office with the knowledge that another of his blood, Charles Haddad of South End, will be on the board of street commissioners. But not as chairman, the post held by Malouf.

Frank J. Mitchell, one of Lieut. Gov. Kelly's strongest supporters, will be a candidate for the House from Ward 16, Dorchester, next election . . . Mayor Tobin is concentrating on leveling the spectre of a $46 tax rate. Those close to him have awarded him an A for application, but the problem seems to be something that is impossible to surmount.

Admirers of 'Flash' Beseige Universal With Bequests

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 17—Universal bosses don't know whether to be flattered or to tear their hair over the terrific public interest in what they are doing with the cartoon character, "Flash Gordon."

Louella O. Parsons

Ever since the funny paper Hero No. 1 was "signed" for the movies, the studio has been deluged with letters from Flash's admirers demanding that they do right by him—or else!

So great was the interest in what was to have been just another serial that a quarter of million dollars was added to the budget. Buster Crabbe was signed on a long term contract—and, hold your hat—Universal is actually going to preview the first of the fifteen "Flash Gordon" installments just to make sure they are on the right track! In view of all this excitement it isn't exactly surprising to learn that the same studio has bought "Red Barry," another cartoon, also for Buster.

Gloria Swanson is leaving Hollywood, the town in which she brought much glamour. She is dismantling her big house in Beverly Hills and saying au revoir at a farewell tea next Thursday. Her children will join her in New York at the end of their school session, and she has made all arrangements to take up a permanent residence in the East.

Grand National has offered Warner Brothers Roland Brown's film play, "Angels With Dirty Faces," which they bought for James Cagney. The company where Mr. Cagney formerly made his movies has no use for it now, since in the future he will make pictures only on the Warner lot.

Cagney himself is greatly interested in the story, but Warners have so many other things in view for their returned prodigal that it is problematical if they will buy this. I do believe, however, that the "Of Mice and Men" deal will go through if the asking price of $200,000 is brought within reason.

Nat Levine, who did such big things for Republic when he was the guiding genius there, will produce "Lord Jeff," Freddie Bartholomew's next picture for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

It is a story of Barnado's famous school for British orphans.

A line or two: Darryl Zanuck is going around with a race track gleam in his eyes these days—and it's not over a lucky winner at Santa Anita. Darryl has just bought "The Look of Eagles" by John Taintor Foote, and the author himself is heading coastward to work on the script and to accompany the troupe to the Kentucky "Darby" for atmosphere . . . It's definite now that Joseph Schildkraut will step into the role of the Duc D'Orleans with Norma Shearer in "Marie Antoinette."

Snapshots of Hollywood

CONSTANCE BENNETT choo-chooing East to visit COUNTESS DOROTHY DI FRASSO; those two beauteous blondes, CLAIRE TREVOR and PHYLLIS BROOKS, are also headed East for a holiday and a round of shows; the widely publicized frock of MARLENE DIETRICH'S has nary a cabbage on it but a sort of glorified white flower. She wore it to the "Old Chicago" opening where she was escorted by the EARL OF WARWICK. That's all for today. See you tomorrow!

"HOLLYWOOD HOTEL," with Louella Parsons, Benny Goodman and his orchestra, Dick Powell and Frances Langford opens Thursday, January 20, on the screen of the Metropolitan Theater.

Kaufman's successful Broadway stage hit on stage-struck girls, costarring Katharine Hepburn, Ginger Rogers and Adolphe Menjou, shares screen honors with "Submarine D-1," Warner Brothers' exciting sea story with Pat O'Brien, George Brent, Wayne Morris and Doris Weston on the new Washington Street Olympia program this week.

JERRY GOES THROUGH FOR RIVAL IN LOVE

DENOUNCED Jerry gives Brad Talton upbraiding for involving Sheila in arrest. "Why didn't you get some of your pals or servants to drive you?" asks Jerry. "Because you didn't want to have anyone along. You wanted to have Sheila Kelly all to yourself. Because she's a good girl, and you don't meet that kind every day!" Brad, angered by charge realizes that calling Sheila as witness will imperil her job at state house. Brad also realizes that his father will be furious if he discovers his son has brought stain on Talton name, and may even disinherit Brad. What course can he take?

AT DOOR to Pemberton building at Pemberton sq., Jerry introduces Brad Talton to Atty. Wm. Scharton before the two rivals proceed on their way to Brad's hearing before the warrant session. Jerry manages to have charges against Harvard youth so divided that Brad has better chance of escaping serious consequences of driving without license after having taken a few drinks. He still fears, however, that Brad may have to call Sheila as a witness if he is to escape conviction and possible jail term. He tells Brad girl's story might carry weight since he was speeding to rush her to aid of her brother Mickey. Also Sheila knows Brad, though he had been drinking, was not drunk while operating automobile.

O'DONOVAN FIGHTS TO KEEP BRAD FROM JAIL

Fears Sheila May Have to Testify

It was an old name—as old as any in Boston—and Cabot Talton prided himself on having kept it untarnished.

There were those on State street who [illegible] Talton [illegible] and when Joseph P. [illegible] one-time [illegible] Securities Exchange Commission [illegible] were [illegible] that [illegible] having [illegible] given [illegible]

B[illegible] name [illegible] was [illegible] in Boston [illegible] by exact [illegible] had kept [illegible] by scandal [illegible] changing [illegible]

His father [illegible] over [illegible] when he [illegible] degrade [illegible] Brad was [illegible] look that.

"It's a [illegible]

Brad reddened.

"Oh, I get your angle. You think I'm wrong to consider it. But look at it my way. If my father comes down on me, cutting off my income is the least thing he'll do. And that would be bad enough. But we'll probably get in a row, and he'll end up by changing his will. That could cost me anywhere from a million to ten million. That's not cigar coupons, Counsellor."

Jerry looked at him with a mixture of commiseration and wonderment.

"Talton, if you'll excuse me saying so, your type has certainly got me stopped. Here you are with the whole world in your lap, and you can't find anything better to do than get stiff and go driving around without a license. And then when you get in a jam, you can't take it. Why didn't you think of those millions before you started out from Dover? Why didn't you get some of your pals or servants to drive you?" His tone took on a tinge of anger. "I'll tell you why. Because you didn't want to have anyone along.

"You wanted to have Sheila Kelly all to yourself! Because she's a good girl with the right principles, and YOU don't meet that kind every day. . . . M[illegible] [illegible] It's a good thing you were pinched."

Brad straightened up haughtily.

"If you're going to insult me [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible] Thank Heavens I don't need [illegible] I'll have to call Sheila [illegible] anyhow. And I hope I don't have to call her at a [illegible]

Briefcase in hand, he held open the door, and the two men walked out together, yet a [illegible] way apart. Brad [illegible] fair . . . his head high, his manner [illegible] Jerry with the habit of [illegible] of knowing he'd be taken care of somehow . . . Jerry [illegible] and dark as Brad was fair. Not much difference [illegible] but placed thus together, Jerry looked much the bigger man . . . A bigness that came from character rather than mere inches and pounds . . . A bigness born of confidence and power and firm [illegible] purpose.

They walked down Pemberton square, stride for stride. Jerry speaking to people every 20 feet. Brad acutely conscious of his unfamiliarity with this world of lawyers and [illegible] of judges and bailiffs, of [illegible] clerks, defendants, witnesses, plaintiffs [illegible] back and forth every [illegible] between the city hall and the court house.

"That's Judge Dan Golen," said Jerry. "One of the smartest men on the bench." Then to another passer, "Hello, Joe." Then to Brad, "That's Joe McDonough, if I lose this case you'd better get him." With one man, he stopped to chat for a minute. "Joe Sheridan," he explained later. "One of our crowd. He wanted to know why I wasn't at a campaign conference."

"I'm afraid I'm taking time you should be electioneering," said Brad.

"You are," said Jerry. "But I'm not complaining. I said I'd see you through and I will. By the [illegible] from those lawyers you were calling the other night?" I mean'—he repeated the [illegible] name of the expensive legal firm Brad [illegible]

[illegible]

"I hope you're right," said Jerry, "for a lot of reasons. But chiefly on Sheila's account."

"That confirms a suspicion I had," replied Brad, dryly. "That you aren't doing it for love of me."

"Right!" said Jerry, and they walked in silence after that until they reached City Hall square.

"Well," he said, "we meet again. And afoot."

It was Sheila. Her eyes searched Jerry's as he too bowed. He returned her gaze steadily.

"Hello, Kelly," he said. "It's good to see you." And his tone said he meant it.

Her glance leaped to Brad and back again questioningly.

"We're on our way to court," volunteered Jerry.

"Oh, I see!" The blood had mounted to Sheila's cheeks. "I—I'm on my way to the city hall. To check up on some tax records for my office. Is—everything all right?"

"You'll have to consult my attorney," said Brad. "Thanks for asking."

Sheila glanced at Jerry questioningly. With a little too much worry, he thought. As if Brad's fate meant a lot to her.

"I think everything's going to be all right," he said shortly. "If it's not, you'll hear from me."

"Dear, I hope it is!"

"So do I," said Brad with feeling. "And you'll hear from me anyhow."

"Honestly," she said, her eyes still detaining them both, "I feel terribly. As if it were all my fault."

"Nonsense." Jerry's tone was emphatic. "It wasn't your fault in the least!"

"Certainly not," echoed Brad. "You didn't revoke my license."

Jerry glanced uneasily at the [illegible]

"We're going to be late," he said, "and that will move us to the bottom of the docket."

"Well," said Sheila, "I refuse to be responsible for that. Good-bye now."

[illegible]

Jerry [illegible] worried . . . But wasn't Jerry grand to stick with him that way! She found herself wondering whether Brad would have done as much if the tables had been reversed.

And Brad had said she'd hear from him . . . But did she want to? . . . Wouldn't she rather hear from Jerry? Strange [illegible]

"VERY annoying," said Brad, as he trailed after Jerry. "Having to get into court on the dot. It breaks in on pleasanter things."

Jerry made no answer. He'd meant what he said to Sheila [illegible]

[illegible]

"Funny. It strikes me I've been here before. Though I don't know when."

"Possibly when it was Young's Hotel," said Jerry. "That's what it used to be."

Then Brad knew. He saw himself, a small boy in knickerbockers sitting across a table from his father. A white-haired Negro waiter bent with age was pouring coffee from a silver urn. And Cabot Talton was saying:

"This is my son, Bradford, Jeff. I suppose he'll be eating here after we're both gone."

And now that once gracious dining room was gone and the great glass chandelier and there were desks and books where the damask white tables had once been.

And old Jeff, his father's fa[illegible]

[illegible]

"So this is your boy. Well, I'm sure he'll add lustre to the Talton name."

And here he was at liberty on bail, walking into the ghost of the old hotel—a sad ghost himself of the proud boy that had to answer to a charge that, while trivial enough in its way, [illegible] that, it seemed, placed him in danger of even deeper disgrace.

"What's the matter?" asked Jerry.

"Nothing serious," said Brad Talton.

But Jerry, seeing him [illegible] furtive thought, "That's funny, he's almost crying." And, without knowing the reason, he [illegible]

"When A Cabot Loves A Kelly"

Read this synopsis of serial which is thrilling New England—then continue it day by day in the Boston Evening American Gay, young, beautiful—that's Sheila Kelly when this story opens. Heart-free, too, except for Attorney Jerry O'Donovan, former B. C. football star, whom she vaguely thinks of as her future husband. But Sheila's glad to have a temporary job at the State House, so she can contribute to the support of her family—Barney, her father, injured in the police strike, Patsy, her pleasure-loving 16-year-old sister, and her mother. She shares her father's ambitions, too, for her brother, Mickey. But Mickey would rather be a pugilist than a lawyer.

In protecting Patsy from the consequences of a "pickup date," Sheila meets Bradford Cabot Talton, Harvard student and son of an old and wealthy Beacon street family. Brad seeks to make an easy conquest. But Sheila turns him down cold. Nor, however, before Jerry had seen them together.

Though she doesn't know it, Sheila has also [illegible] the interest of Big Gus Morrick, [illegible] of the Boston rackets, who [illegible] report on racketeering [illegible] He [illegible] Greefy Ke[illegible] but Greefy [illegible] and he [illegible] gets a beating-up from Jerry.

Meanwhile, the Kelly home [illegible] two [illegible] guests—Delphine Barton, Sheila's [illegible] sister, and Delphine's small son, Timmy. Del has parted from her husband, Vincent Barton, of Jamaica Plain. Vince [illegible] like Bing Crosby, but has a weak spot for blondes and [illegible]

Sheila accidentally meets Brad again when she goes to the Boston Arena to stop Mickey from fighting in defiance of his father's orders. With Brad are his sister, the wealthy Mrs. Trudy Wendell of Dover; his Harvard room-mate, Whit Prentiss, and Whit's cousin, Jane Prentiss, society debutante, who likes Brad.

"Big Gus," also sitting ringside, admires Mickey's glove work, and tries to sign him for his boxing-stable. Aided by Brad, Sheila balks this temporarily. At the Towne Club, after the fights, Brad asks Sheila to the coming Harvard-Dartmouth game. She goes after Jerry breaks a date to take her to the B. C.-Detroit game. Later she and Brad go to Trudy's Dover mansion.

Angry at Jerry, moved by Brad's professions of sincere love, Sheila permits a kiss, "just one." They are interrupted by Jane, who has become interested in Mickey. She says she has left him at a downtown night club with Morrick.

Driving to the club with Sheila, Brad is arrested for speeding and Sheila continues alone. Arriving as Morrick is leaving, she follows the racketeer to his South End "stone castle." Thinking Mickey is with him, she enters.

She now recognizes Big Gus as the powerful "Z 11" of the racket report she has typed—and finds she is a prisoner. Aided by a radio crooner, whose voice stirs Gus's better nature, she halts the racketeer's clumsy love-making. He prepares to free her, but threatens injury to her family if she "talks."

Sheila, on her part, makes him promise to leave Mickey alone. Freed, she goes home and tells Delphine she believes she has found Del's [illegible] husband, Vince. He is the radio crooner. Jerry arrives, explains why he missed their engagement, and serves an ultimatum on her. She must learn to know her mind. He [illegible] ambitious. If he occasionally misses an engagement, she must understand. She disagrees and a break between them is imminent. But learning Brad's still in custody, Jerry generously volunteers to help him. Turning back as he storms out of the house, he gives Sheila a [illegible] farewell kiss. "Tell your Harvard Romeo," he says, "what it feels like to be kissed by a real man."

Jerry finds Brad was driving without a license and has "gone haywire" with the police [illegible] them. Brad [illegible] by [illegible] of money [illegible] However, Jerry [illegible] a grudge, bails Brad out, [illegible] him from a night in the Towne [illegible] meeting Brad Monday morning before his case comes up in court, Jerry tells him his only chance to escape a jail sentence is to call Sheila as a witness. He leaves it to Brad—is his pretended love and [illegible] enough to survive such a test?

Talton Faces Discipline By Father

Because Jerry O'Donovan was [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible] of the offense.

Brad gathered that Jerry was [illegible] getting the drunk charge dismissed. He saw him talking earnestly with several [illegible] in the courtroom and [illegible] glances bent his way.

Then he heard his name called. There was conversation at the bench and Jerry said:

"Well, we did fairly well. It's agreed you weren't helplessly drunk, so the charges only will be driving under the influence and driving without a license. The speeding charge will be handled separately in Roxbury, and will just be a fine. Bond stands as is. You come up for arraignment Thursday, so you'd better drop into my office about 9 that morning."

"How about the prospects of jail?" inquired Brad, as cheerfully as he could.

"They've lessened," said Jerry. "Though not definitely out. We may have to call Sheila yet."

As they left the court, Brad [illegible]

"This has taught me a lesson, Counsellor. Do you know what I'm going to do after this when I'm in a hurry?"

"Get a taxi?"

"No. I'm going to buy a plane. And fly."

[illegible] He [illegible]

"Well," said Jerry, thoughtfully, looking him over, "now you mention it, Talton, that might not be a bad idea. Not bad at all. Provided—you don't take any [illegible] up with you."

Apparently, Brad is ready to sacrifice Sheila if it will save him from a possible jail sentence. But how is Sheila going to feel about that? And will she be able to help him, after all? Critical developments occur in tomorrow's chapter of this absorbing all-Boston serial romance of love and politics.

Illness Keeps Six Million at Home

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17 (I[illegible]).—Six million Americans—men, women and children—are unable to work, attend school or follow their usual activities this winter because of injury, illness or a gross physical impairment caused by injury or disease, the U. S. Public Health Service reported today.

In a nation-wide survey the service found an average of 200 are sick each day in towns of 5000-4500 in cities of 100,000, and 22,000 in cities of 500,000 persons.

Sheila Barrett Serious

Six personalities appear to [illegible] faded away after twisting many a radio listener's heart [illegible] within 15 minutes, when Sheila Barrett took time off from her Keith Memorial Theater performance to perform at night over station WNAC.

It [illegible] of an hour [illegible] Boston [illegible] American's radio Advertiser [illegible] [illegible] serious impersonations possess even greater appeal than the [illegible] which have made her famous.

First she screwed and [illegible]

[illegible] Mrs. [illegible]

GRETA GARBOISM

She was equally uproarious when with high-arched eyebrow and hand [illegible] she mumbled Greta Garboisms over the air. Perfect as a Garbo impersonation and better yet as a portrayal of the mannerisms of the Swedish star.

"Anyone can put on a false nose and be W. C. Fields," said Sheila. "I prefer to imitate the star and say 'Boo' at them.

"In fact, there's so much impersonation by amateurs these days that I am doing more serious sketches. The audiences like my serious work more and more, too."

HIGH POINT

High point of her radio appearance was the portrayal of a girl trying to break into movie work. In the difficult impersonation Miss Barrett rapidly changed into four girl types, Southern, "dumb blonde," English and French.

Friday she goes into serious dramatic work more intensely when she plays the Mary Turner role in "Within the Law," a Radio Guild drama over a nation-wide hook-up from New York.

HERE ARE RULES

Here are the simple rules:

All bona fide residents of New England, with the exception of the employes and their families, already mentioned are eligible to enter.

All future scrambled name pictures—there will be 47 in addition to today's—will appear in the Boston Evening American, one each week day.

Unscramble the film stars' names, using every letter in the picture. Write or print the name of the star on the line provided, or on any piece of paper.

But hold all answers until you have the complete set of 49. Do NOT send the pictures SEPARATELY.

When the last scrambled name picture has been published and you have completed your set of 49, mail your entry, by first class mail, to "Movie Stars, Boston Evening American, P. O. Box 866, No. 5 Winthrop Square, Boston, Mass."

There is NO FEE required for your entry.

With your entry, send a letter, giving your name and address and telling, in 50 words or less, who is your favorite movie star and why. These letters will be considered only in the event of ties in naming the stars.

Entries MUST be in the office of the Boston Evening American by midnight, 10 days after the Name No. 49 has appeared.

In submitting their entries, contestants agree that the decisions of a committee of judges appointed by the Boston Evening American will be final.

ENTER JUST NOW!

Awards will be paid to the persons who send in the nearest correctly solved, complete set of unscrambled names. And neither handwriting nor elaborateness will count.

In the event of a tie between or among two or more entrants for any of the prizes, the prize or prizes next in order will be combined in a lump sum and then evenly distributed among those tied.

Remember you have a chance to win $2500 as first prize, $1250 as second and $1000 as third. And even if you do not hit the three major spots, there are the following awards still awaiting:

Fourth prize, $500; fifth prize, $200; sixth, $100; then 10 prizes of $50 each, 20 prizes of $25 each, 150 prizes of $10 each and 300 prizes of $5 each.

FILM FAVORITES

Such well-known favorites as Myrna Loy, Shirley Temple, Robert Taylor, Kay Francis, Fred Astaire, Ginger Rogers, Clark Gable, Claudette Colbert, Tyrone Power, Spencer Tracy and other Hollywood [illegible] will be pictured.

Start TODAY by working out Scrambled Names No. 1 and 2.

Then continue each week-day as subsequent pictures appear in the Boston Evening American.

BLOW ME DOWN! HOW WOULD A SWAB LIKE ME A KNOWED THEY HAD A MILLYON DOLLARS EXTRY LAST YEAR IN THE COMIC WEEKLY!
Puck

and NO SPINACH!

In 1937 advertisers put one million dollars more into Puck-The Comic Weekly than ever before... And more advertisers used Puck-The Comic Weekly than ever before

★ A 42% gain in one year! Obviously there is a direct relationship between this tremendous increase and the sales results obtained by advertisers from the space they used in Puck-The Comic Weekly. Actual direct returns are primarily responsible for these increased schedules.

★ What is the secret of this unusual sales effectiveness?

The greatest single factor is the way people read Puck-The Comic Weekly. It's just human nature to start at the beginning and read to the end. The cast of characters in Puck-The Comic Weekly is tops in entertainment... an All-Star Cast beloved by millions. As each page is turned the curtain is raised on another favorite character. That's why each advertiser's message enjoys preferred position. That's why each advertiser's message gets read.

★ Surprisingly, the All-Star Cast wins the attention of twice as many adults as juveniles . . . delivers an audience of 12,702,000 adults and a circulation bonus of 6,900,000 juveniles!

★ Each week in six million homes Puck-The Comic Weekly is eagerly read by 4,688,000 housewives and 1,680,000 other female adults; 4,524,000 husbands and 1,830,000 other male adults; 3,660,000 male juveniles (under 18 years of age) and 3,240,000 female juveniles. (Authority: Daniel Starch Survey.)

★ Across America in the best retail markets, Puck-The Comic Weekly gives advertisers whole-family coverage of every fifth family . . . the greatest reader-audience in the world.

★ Puck-The Comic Weekly has one editorial policy... one cast of characters... one make-up... one printing standard from coast to coast. The number of advertisements per issue is limited, assuring each advertiser spotlight visibility. In 1937, Puck-The Comic Weekly led all so-called "groups" in advertising volume.

Complete information is available on how the All-Star Cast has captured America's Buying Majority who determine what American retailers stock and sell. Please phone COlumbus 5-2642, New York, or Superior 6820, Chicago.

You [illegible] have to start up to [illegible] that man and if necessary [illegible] will have to tell him why we did not dare to trust him.

I think I understand the situation, sir, except for one point," Matresser said. "That, I must confess, puzzles me.

ALARMING NEWS

What, Lord Somerby?

Not one of us had the slightest idea that he was travelling by that plane. I'm afraid there was something a little unpleasant [illegible] now. He was in the plane [illegible] to death and [illegible] with him.

His appointment with the French Premier was never kept. No one at our Embassy there knew what had happened to him. Our special wire to Paris has been [illegible] the French side.

[illegible]

But what made Somerby travel by that plane?" [illegible] [illegible]

An act of idiocy," the Premier said gravely. "He has paid for it with his life. It is for us to try [illegible] straight again if [illegible] Your plane is waiting at Heston, Matresser. You must reach Le Bourget and [illegible] [illegible] if you have to break [illegible] war with France by midday."

THE FRENCH VIEW

[illegible] Matresser wound up, "that you have now, sir, a clearer appreciation of this matter. You [illegible] of course, that everything would have been put before [illegible] in a more statesmanlike manner many hours ago but for the unfortunate accident to the plane in which Lord Somerby was travelling.

[illegible]

[illegible] the post of Minister for Foreign Affairs [illegible]

"Certainly," the Premier admitted gravely, "your explanation throws a somewhat different light upon the subject, Lord Matresser, but we are still—my colleague here and I—what words can I use?—dumbfounded, shocked that you should have proceeded without France so far as you have in these negotiations with a country which we consider our common enemy."

THE PLAIN FACTS

"If you press that point," Monsieur," Matresser replied, "I must answer it. I shall have to ask you to believe that the government, on behalf of which I am speaking, can only offer you plain facts and beg you to consider these for a moment from its point of view."

"Your explanation is somewhat confusing," the Premier remarked drily, "but pray continue."

"The English Cabinet," Matresser went on, changing his place slightly to avoid the first rays of sunshine pouring in through the high windows, "realizes that you may have some apparent cause for complaint but it offers you a frank and full explanation."

CORSAGE

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I am to attend a formal dinner dance [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible] transferred to the dress when I [illegible] to the hotel in the box and put on when we reach the hotel.

One of my friends who does not expect to receive a corsage would like to know if it would be wise for her to buy her own corsage?

MARY

By far the wisest way is to pin the corsage on your evening wrap and then transfer it to your dress when you arrive at the hotel [illegible] your wrap. And to carry the box with you to the hotel looks [illegible] as if you weren't used to receiving corsages.

[illegible] On the other hand [illegible]

My teacher of a previous year has been aiding me for the past few months in my studies. I wish to give her some nice gift. She has refused to take any money whatsoever.

My father [illegible] Would [illegible] be a suitable gift?

If so, how should I send it as I do not know the size or what she would like? If this won't do, will you kindly suggest something?

F

[illegible]

BRIDESMAIDS' DUTIES

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Will you please tell me the duties of the bridesmaids at a wedding?

A BRIDESMAID

Besides [illegible] and gracious cooperation with the desires of the bride in carrying out the details of the ceremony the bridesmaids have [illegible] except to be prompt and [illegible] at the rehearsal, to be prompt and pretty at the wedding and to receive charmingly [illegible] the wedding reception.

On the day of the wedding they meet at the bride's house, collect their bouquets and drive to the church in the car preceding the one containing the bride and her father who leave last.

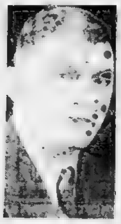
Essay on Journalism:
Reply to Boy Sport Writing Aspirants

ONE OF THE PERPLEXITIES OF THIS pillar is what to do about the voluminous enquiries which come from readers in topics ranging from the girth of Jimmy Foxx's biceps to the present address of Jim Thorpe. Most of these letters enclose a three-cent stamp and ask for prompt reply.



AUSTEN LAKE

Though one wishes to be obliging in all matters, both great and small, it stumps me how to learn the girth of Foxx's upper arm without travelling to Philadelphia and taking tape measurements. Such items are not entered in the paper-back encyclopedias which form the desk libraries of every sport author.

But the most frequent appeals come from youths of high school age, wishful to be told how to become writers in a metropolitan sport-staff and usually enclosing a sample manuscript of the candidate's literary skill with requests, please, to scan it for sales values. The boys add wistful postscripts that the life appears attractive, the work congenial and a pleasant way of earning a wage while occupying the best [illegible] seats without cost.

Unlike the Hollywood Version

THERE IS A POPULAR MISCONCEPTION of a sport writer's life, due to movie and fiction-magazine distortions which portray the newspeople, male and female, as gay [illegible] who, as required, will climb a porch, pick a pocket or double-cross their own grandmothers for a story. They are pictured with hats askew, squinting through curls of cigarette smoke, always shabby and broke and on intimate terms with every wrong-living no good character in town.

[illegible]

Or, if they are sport reporters, they sit in the press coops studying the action in terms of cold type with the professional preoccupation of a surgeon examining a patient for gall stones. The emotion which sweeps the crowd, the hysteria of the big moments seldom quickens their pulses as they peer down from the heights and tap on their toy typewriters that, "Pandemonium broke loose as Shore shinnied down the ice and sank the equalizer," while begging a neighbor for the loan of a cigarette.

Tramps and Ph. D.'s Are Few

BUT DON'T LET US KID OURSELVES. There are some frowsy reportorial tramps in the business. But you would not expect to meet royalty, or even the old southern type of aristocracy, in the local room of sport corner. Because, for one thing, that kind would not have what it takes to be good, go-getting reporters.

But in between the frowsies, of which there are just barely a few, and the Harvard Ph. D.'s, of which there are fewer still, [illegible]

The office delinquents who cut up alcoholic didoes, miss their editions and are A. W. O. L. in the needful moments, get the same short shrift as any other worker in well regulated business. Either they reform and lead finer lives before it is too late, or they end on the curbstone bumming nickels.

There are a few sturdy news types who somehow contrive to mould their facts with grammatical nicety while taking their drams to the point of feeling nothing but fringe below their waists. But these are as rare as the Rabbit Maranvilles and Grover Alexanders of baseball, who hiccuped themselves to glory. They are museum pieces whose like is rarely seen.

Old Order Changeth

ALSO THE LONE-WOLF REPORTERS of the old feudal newspaper day when the scoop was the utmost in journalistic triumph, has dwindled into that favorite figure of speech, the swirling mists of time. Standardization of news by the Associated Press, the International News and the United Press, has wiped out the romantic figures who once sniffed out some nauseous scandal which had baffled the best police brains and then broke his story in an exclusive, front page spread.

Most of the present generation of reporters pool their news when on a common assignment. For example the baseball writer who, through personal ambition, scoops his fellows in the Southern training camps, or while touring with the teams, becomes a pariah sure to pay the penalty by being scooped and re-scooped by the concerted vengeance of his fellows. And reproach is usually swift to follow in the form of a telegram from his office boss, "Where were you when

The new Red Sox outfielder [illegible]

"It's the first time I've had a short left field wall to aim at," explained the [illegible] year old right-handed fly chaser who hit .325 with the Browns last year and over .300 for four of his six campaigns with the Cleveland Indians.

BOUNCE 'EM OFF

"I won't say how many I'm going to put over that wall. I'll tell you I don't hit a ball high enough. But I'm going to bounce a lot of hits off there and that's good for two bases every time the fielder doesn't get to it [illegible] a break on the rebound."

Tom [illegible] was in [illegible] conference with the weather men [illegible] who predicted the [illegible] into the night. Aurel Joliat Suffers Broken Nose

By BILL GRIMES

[illegible] after the [illegible] Blackhawks [illegible] Art Jackson, Bobby Bauer, Woody Dumart and Ray Getliffe will board a train for Toronto . . . Bauer and Dumart will continue to their homes in Kitchener. Getliffe will switch off at Buffalo for London, and Jackson will stop off in Toronto . . . They will report back to the Bruins for practice in Toronto Friday afternoon . . .

Now, that he has the crowd coming, Walter F. Brown, general manager of the Garden and Arena, is anxious to give the Olympic fans a Saturday night's entertainment. So he is trying to get Lafontaine to advance their game from Sunday to Saturday night . . . Due to the Silver Skates Derby, the Olympic-Lafontaine game was scheduled for Sunday night instead of in the afternoon . . .

Johnny Gagnon and Aurel Joliat, two of the Canadiens veterans, suffered [illegible] injuries. [illegible] Joliat crashed into the boards with Bobby Bauer and smashed his nose. Both retired to the dressing room for first aid treatment.

Ray Getliffe had a wisdom tooth extracted recently and he has not been able to pry his jaw open for a couple of days . . . Milt Schmidt has an appointment today with Dr. Charles W. Crowley, the club dentist, to have the wires on his fractured jaw removed . . . Schmidt will make the next trip with the Bruins although he may not be called upon to do much service [illegible] in shape.

Jack Sands is really getting sensational . . . His reckless end to end flights are the talk of the fans . . . He came within a hair of scoring in the second period after the best rush of the night, which took him right around the Canuck cage . . . But Wilfie Cude sensed his intentions and was prone on the ice when Charlie attempted to push the disc home.

Unless he's out to become the "Bad Man" of the league, "Red" Goupille should mend his tendency for kicking at opponents . . . If the other clubs get him marked down as a kicker, Goupille's major league career will come to a sudden end one of these fine nights . . .

The Blackhawk defense must have collapsed in the third period last night . . . Maple Leafs piled in five goals on the Stewart Stalwarts . . . [illegible] Kelly got three goals during the evening . . . The Rangers kept pace with the Bruins by [illegible] the Americans 4 to 0 . . . Walter Randall, one of Win Green's assistants who [illegible] while the Old Master was counted out last week, is now a [illegible] . . . Johnny Orlando, who is "Green-ie's" assistant with the Red Sox, was Randall's pinch hitter . . .

Cooney Weiland had a very important engagement this morning down in Pemberton Square . . . While [illegible] up his goals and assists the other day Cooney drove through a red light . . . Neal McKenna, the Pride of Nova Scotia, must be suffering [illegible] . . . He recently passed out on Win Green's rubbing table at the Arena . . . [illegible] the other day and [illegible] which [illegible] he broke a few years ago . . . Jack Portland has been ordered by Art Ross to stay in his hotel today . . . He has been suffering [illegible] weeks with a heavy cold . . .

In the third period Babe Siebert [illegible] and Bert McCaffrey, the referees, [illegible] of his elbow pads and held the game up until an [illegible] went to the Canadiens room for a new pair . . . He should have been ordered to play or remove himself from the game . . . Some night a player will send out for a couple of hamburgers, and a hockey game will become an all night affair.

Danno Talks About Bout With Robert | O'Mahony Is Ready Walker in Town

By JACK CONWAY

Mr Boston

Danno looked as if he is in perfect physical condition. He has been keeping active in the ring and doesn't carry any excess weight. Experience in major bouts in all parts of the United States and Canada has given him an air of sureness as far as his own ability is concerned.

The O'Mahony who came from the little village of Ballydehob, West Cork Ireland, to the United States three years ago was a sturdy, powerful athlete, but he lacked wrestling polish and ring technique. The fire of competition in more than 250 matches in this country has smoothed off the rough spots in O'Mahony's wrestling. He has harnessed up the tremendous power in his young body.

The roar of the crowd that used to awe him is now music in his ears. It lifts him to greater heights in competition.

The young athlete is often timid as he walks down the aisle leading to a ring. He often questions his own ability as he crawls through the ropes while a big crowd cheers for him. He is so eager to please his supporters that he fails to show at his best. His muscles become tight, his brain a bit foggy, and he does not react as he should.

The O'Mahony of three years ago was at times a bit tense when in competition. Then his tremendous strength would come to his aid, and he would beat down his opponent by sheer force.

The O'Mahony who will face Robert in the Garden ring on Friday night will be a loose limbed, perfectly conditioned athlete with mind and muscles working as if one. You will see Danno's eyes fixed on Robert from the time the tussle opens until it ends.

Writing a Matter of Muscularity

CREATIVE WRITING IN ANY FORM is learned by sheer, muscular strength and a willingness to take pains, and though schooling perfects grammar, typewriting and the rudiments of expression, only self-punishment and tenacity will develop vivid style or an imagination from whence it springs. The chief requisite in writing, whether it be sport or otherwise, is a shrewd understanding of human behavior, a consuming curiosity and a well disciplined patience. In short, writing is not an exact science which can be taught by formula. There is no broad and royal road.

The schools of journalism may turn out annual quotas of book reviewers, art critics and love-lorn experts but the backbone of the papers will continue to be the plain, go-get-em reporter who takes his assignments from [illegible] without pausing to ask himself [illegible] interest of science, humanity and art.

The school of journalism does not teach a scholar the round about methods of getting a story when direct approach has failed, or how to make and keep news contacts or how to interview a victim without scaring the giblets out of him with pad and pencil, or how to sift fact from fake, or how to concentrate amid the rattle and shuttle of squirrel cage distractions, etc., etc. The best that a journal school gives a boy is a dash of art and a smatter of mechanics. Which perhaps is why the graduate office boy makes the best newsman. He has no romantic notions about the work.

Malden, Rindge, Waltham Loom as Hockey Champs

Bessom, Hegan Keep Lynn English on Sport Map

A new Eastern Massachusetts Hockey League champion will be crowned Friday night when the result of the Brockton-Malden clash is posted . . . these two teams play in the opening game of the night, and both are tied for first place . . . Somerville, last year's title holder, hasn't a chance of finishing in the money.

Malden, with the highest scoring combination in the loop, will have to step fast to beat the boys from the Shoe City . . . Brockton, too, has high scorers in Hayward and Johnson . . . these two lads have banged home 12 goals . . . the Malden line of Hanifan-Lamb-Lipnosky has tallied 16.

Swinging over to the Greater Boston loop which passed its half way mark Saturday, we find Rindge Tech still on top . . . its city rival, Cambridge Latin, moved up to within one point of the leader with its win over last year's champion, Stoneham . . . Frank Briand of Latin continues to dominate the scoring column, keeping his lead over Rindge's Ralph Powers.

Waltham looks like a cinch in the Bay State despite the close call it had Friday night when it tied Needham in the waning moments of the game . . . Art Shaughnessy, league high scorer, who had been bottled up most of the night, sank the winning goal . . . only two more sessions in this league, then the playoffs . . . looks like Framingham or Walpole in the second spot.

Ray Bessom and Jim Hegan still keeping Lynn English on the map . . . first it was baseball for the High school and Lynn Jr. Legion, then football, and now on the basketball courts . . . English is leading the Essex County league with three straight wins, and Jim is the league's high scorer . . . Lowell High's floor team is doing pretty well with its 11 straight wins . . . Chelsea is another team which wasn't given much of a rating either but which is doing well . . . Classical lost its first court game last week . . . reason for this is that Captain Johnny Wilson, speedy forward, was lost by ineligibility . . . over age . . . Salem is the only team that may overtake English and hopes to avenge the early season defeat the next time it plays the Lynn five.

Track really hits its stride this week . . . the Boston schools open their regular season . . . Wednesday a tri-cornered match is scheduled . . . English-Dorchester-Trade the competitors . . . the following day Latin, Commerce and Memorial meet at the 101st Armory . . . Malden and Medford renew hostilities on the saucer with their annual meet Thursday . . . another hot track duel will be held at Everett Friday when Newton, fresh from its victory over Brockton, runs against the Gildeamen . . . Harley Masters did some nice running Saturday for Lynn Classical . . . took two firsts against the alumni . . . seems like a repeater as school sprint champion . . . the Classical track team meets Lowell Friday . . . other track meets are Lawrence at Lynn English and Arlington at Brookline.

ODD BITS . . . Malden Catholic League football champs feted tomorrow night by the West Side A. A. . . . letters and sweaters to be presented to the boys . . . Saugus treats its successful eleven Saturday night at the Town Hall . . . only 23 tickets left for the banquet . . . a surprise is in store for the lads . . . already recipients of sweaters, the football lads will receive a present for their feats . . . Permission was asked of the government to fill in part of the Malden river so that Malden Catholic's new Stadium will have a baseball diamond . . . the field is expected to be ready for football next fall . . . a headliner this week will be the Chelsea-Lynn English basketball clash . . . three cheers for the Eastern Mass. basketball officials for exonerating the Saint Bernard basketball team of all blame in the recent fracas during the Fitchburg game . . . the ban which forbade all members of this organization from participating in all of the Saints games was also lifted.

Newton Racer Enters Garden Midget Race

The mighty midget autos will roar again as they speed around the big indoor bowl speedway at the Garden next Thursday night in the final series for the James Cagney Trophy, emblematic of the National Indoor Midget Auto Racing Championship.

Great interest is centered in the debut of several brand new midget racers—the latest in speed creations—that several of the drivers will whizz around the Garden bowl for the first time.

The dare-devil operators of these speed "bugs" now are well acquainted with the tricky track and have overhauled their machines so as to perfectly adapt them to the Garden track.

The reinforcement of two-inch plank on the board track has given the drivers a three-ply surface on which to make their fast rides, and with the track having been widened 1½ feet, the fastest indoor racing ever seen in the world will be witnessed by the race fans who flock to the North Station Sports Auditorium on Thursday night.

Joe Sostillio, of Newton, the only local auto race dare-devil who has been able to hold his own with the nationally famous stars on the Garden Bowl Speedway, has secured the well-known No. 50 Green Eng. Special with which Bill Trootwine of Gloversville, N. Y., won two of the three feature races held at the Garden this season.

Bill felt that in spite of the great showing he has made with No. 50 he could not hold his lead in the finals for the Cagney Trophy, in view of the large number of new race cars entered plus the increased field of stars just returned from Texas, to capture the championship title.

Sostillio is determined to maintain the reputation this No. 50 car holds, and make one for himself right in his own home city.

Bill Schindler, one-legged auto race star and a great Boston favorite, has returned from Indianapolis where he has been readjusting his new Drever Special in order to compete against the greatest field of racers ever assembled at one meeting.

Bill Morrissey, the Wild Irish racer from New York City, along with Joe Carson of Long Island, N. Y., will be making their first Boston appearance of the season.

Eagle Sextet To Play Two

Games with Massachusetts State and Middlebury will keep the Boston College Hockey team busy this week.

The Eagle puck chasers, who have dropped five straight in as many starts, will essay to polish off Mass. State Thursday afternoon at Amherst.

The out-of-towners should prove to be rather easy for the Bostonians, who have dropped three heartbreaking games to Dartmouth, Brown and New Hampshire.

Middlebury, however, battled Northeastern to a 5-5 tie, and the Huskies in turn downed the Eagles, 9-7, in a hurly-burly game at the Arena.

Former Braves Star Killed in Crash

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17 (INS)—Bailey Earl Clark, 29, a former big league baseball player, and Miss Lucky Ketchem, 26, were fatally injured over the week-end when Clark's automobile collided with a street car.

Miss Helen Krane, 22, another passenger in the automobile, suffered cuts and a fractured collarbone. The young women were being driven to their home after a visit with Clark's wife.

Clark won distinction for a few years as an outfielder for the Boston Braves. He also had played with the St. Louis Browns and with the Albany club of the International League.

Belmont High Issues Pin Challenge

They have blazed the way in opening home and home bowling matches with teams from high schools in Greater Boston, an initial start in the forming of an Interscholastic League.

To start the ball rolling in grand shape the Belmont High bowlers have issued a challenge to meet teams of boys and girls from any high school in the Metropolitan District.

Replies should be addressed to David J. O'Connor, 137 Trapelo road, Belmont.

Mr. O'Connor is one of the masters in the Belmont High, and an avid bowling fan. It has been entirely due to his efforts that bowling has taken such a lead in the school.

He organized both boys and girls into six team leagues, this being the second season of their existence, and the match games each week have attracted to the alleys the parents of the youthful contestants.

The players on the challenging teams follow:

Belmont High Boys—Moran Yegian, Leo Daly, Edward Kinchla, Charles Jefferson, Salvatore Lania.

In the instance of several schools accepting the Belmont High challenge, the one bearing the earlier postmark will be given the first match, and so along through the line, as the Belmont teams fear no school in Boston or vicinity in bowling ability.

Stock Market Fails to Yield To Deal Fear

Shrewd Traders View Depressed Issues As Oversold

By LEWIS HANEY

(Professor of Economics, New York University)

NEW YORK, Jan. 17—For the second week in succession, the stock market has moved upward, last week gaining about two points to register a new closing high for the current rise.

All the most active stocks were higher, and it is especially notable that among these were three leading automobile issues. We may infer that this depressed and backward group is considered by shrewd traders to have been oversold.

Bluntly, one should carefully weigh the fact that the stock market gained ground on increased volume last week instead of yielding to fears as to what the New Deal will be able to do to the utilities and "big business." It should be noted that at the very time that the headlines tell of "death penalties for all holding companies," the prices of the great majority of stocks rise.

"Their bark is worse than their bite."

A reasonable inference is that stock prices have discounted the worst. The averages may not be able to rise much further pending more definite action by Congress, but are likely to work two to four points higher, depending upon the volatility of the stocks included. Then, pending action and clarification of the French situation, they may fluctuate in a trading range. The limits may be the October [illegible] level at the top and the December 8 and December 27 level at the bottom.

It must be constantly borne in mind that these "attacks" upon "holding companies" and "big business" are very bullish. They are virtually an admission that most of business is either good or at least not to be attacked.

The general psychology of the New Dealers now is to save face by thundering loudly on a narrow sector. This covers up the retreat, and looks good (to them and their radical followers) in the headlines.

I don't believe that anyone really believes that all holding companies should be abolished. (You will find eventually that only the "bad" ones were meant.)

But anyhow, I am sure that Congress will no more pass any law to that effect than it would accept the scheme to destroy the independence of the judiciary. And even if it were to do so, the Supreme Court would probably declare such sweeping action to be unconstitutional.

Incidentally, the appointment of Mr. Reed to the court seems to be a good one. Mr. Reed is a first class lawyer.

The favorable points are:

1—Market action shows a rising tendency. The majority of stocks reached a new high closing price for the current move. The most active stocks were strong and were a large percentage of the total number traded in. The volume of trading paralleled the movement of prices.

2—Improvement in the demand for new issues.

3—Rearmament spending promises to be an increased factor. (Metals, airplanes and chemicals were leaders last week.)

4—The inflation factor is again gaining in importance, as seen in the backwardness of corporation bonds, the strength in gold mine, oil and metal issues, and the firming up of most commodity markets.

5—Business news has become more encouraging, and labor leaders are less likely to make unreasonable demands.

But the technical position is being weakened by much short covering. There is, of course, a great deal of uncertainty, including both foreign affairs and domestic politics. It may be that Congress will be in for further inflationary policies, but at the same time increase efforts to prevent anybody making money as a result of inflation.

With the horrible example of Russia and France before us, and with the merits of individual enterprise increasingly apparent, the New Deal administration is being driven to cooperate with business —all but a mere "handful."

Am. Superpower's Profit Larger

NEW YORK, Jan. 17 (INS)—American Superpower Corp. of Delaware today reported 1937 profit of $921,718 against $863,243 in 1936.

On Dec. 31, 1937 corporate bonds, preferred and common stocks, and options warrants were carried on balance sheet at $31,078,729 and had a market value of $24,587,831 against a balance total of $32,070,715 and market value of $43,271,182 on Dec. 31 1936.

Lumber Orders Exceed Production

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17 (AP)—The National Lumber Manufacturers' Association said today orders had exceeded production for the fifth consecutive week, but that business was far below the 1929 level.

During the week ended January 8, the association said, 192 reporting mills produced 113,816,000 feet of hard and soft woods; shipped 132,483,000 feet and received orders for 117,936,000 feet.

Shoe Production Gain Is Forecast

Expected to Rise Substantially In First Quarter, Says Standard Statistics

NEW YORK, Jan. 17—Shoe production in the first quarter this year is expected to rise substantially above the abnormally low level reached in the closing months of 1937 and should come close to equalling the average first quarter showing of previous years, with the exception of 1937, says the Standard Statistics Company.

Retail sales of reporting chains for 1937 recorded monthly gains over 1936 in all but the last two months. Consequently, the curtailment in production since last August has been effective in reducing excessive inventory stocks that seriously handicapped operations.

ACTIVITIES QUICKENED

Manufacturing activities have already quickened in response to a revival in demand from dealers for new spring lines and this seasonal factor will continue to aid in boosting operating rates in the early months of this year. Whereas the industry as a whole probably operated at less than 60 per cent of capacity in the final quarter of 1937, prospects for the current quarter point to an increase to around 75 per cent to 80 per cent.

Shoe output in the current quarter is forecast at 97,000,000 pairs compared with an estimated 77,000,000 pairs in the last quarter and 122,000,000 pairs in the first quarter last year.

TRADE PLAN WATCHED

The administration's plans to execute a trade agreement with Czechoslovakia are being watched for the possible effects that a revision in existing tariffs might have on the domestic shoe industry.

Any lowering of the present 20 per cent import duty on cemented sole shoes would undoubtedly increase imports considerably above the estimated level of 3,000,000 pairs for 1937. While no great displacement of the domestic market is threatened by foreign competition, as imports are now less than 1 per cent of total domestic production, more serious consequences might result if cheap foreign shoes are permitted to lower the general price structure.

Developments along these lines, if adverse, would principally affect producers of low-priced women's cemented sole shoes and would have little effect on makers of men's and boys' all-leather shoes.

Chase Bank Still In First Place

NEW YORK, Jan. 17 (INS)—The Chase National Bank continued to hold first place among the country's banks as the only two billion dollar bank by showing deposits of $2,069,988 at the end of 1937, the annual tabulation of the Financial Age pointed out today.

Four other banks fall into the billion dollar class, including the National City Bank with $1,711,502,000 deposits, the Guaranty Trust Co., with $1,449,[illegible],000, the Bank of America, N. T. & S. A., San Francisco, with $1,357,379,000 and the Continental Illinois National Bank & Trust Co., Chicago, with $1,[illegible],000.

Final Eastern Rail Rate Hearing Jan. 20

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17 (AP)—Commissioner Clyde B. Aitchison said today final hearing on a petition of Eastern railroads for an increase in passenger fares from 2 to 2½ cents a mile would be held January 20.

This hearing, covering Eastern roads, is part of the general rail petition for increased revenues sought chiefly by a proposed 15 per cent boost in freight rates.

Sulphur Output Up

PORT SULPHUR, La., Jan. 17—Production of sulphur at the Freeport Sulphur Company's mines here has increased from 177,380 tons for the first six months of 1937 to approximately 220,000 tons for the final six months, a gain of 26 per cent.

Trade Leaders Note Gains in Consumption

See Spring Recovery Due to Lag in Production

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER

IN THE MIDDLEWEST, Jan. 17 (INS)—Business leaders in the great interior workshop of the nation are predicting their forecast of spring recovery in large part on their observation that for many weeks consumption has been outstripping the current low rate of industrial production.

Reflecting this type of thinking, E. J. Kulas, president of the Otis Steel Company, told me:

"It is becoming increasingly clear that the low level of steel operations of recent weeks is not sufficient to meet the country's current consumption of steel. Accordingly, as inventories in the hands of users melt away, supplies will be replenished.

"This factor already is providing the stimulus for a small upturn in operations.

"Although the year has started out with steel operations at low ebb and uncertainty is everywhere in the air, indications of some improvement have already begun to appear."

EYES ON AUTO TRADE

Calling attention to the interdependence of trades, Mr. Kulas added:

"All eyes in the steel business are upon the automobile trade. No one believes that the automobile production of 1937 will be duplicated in 1938, but some improvement from present levels is foreseen over the coming months. Such a gain, of course, would promptly be reflected in better steel operations, and I am confident that it will take place."

Another area of hope for the depressed steel industry is the building trade. A spokesman for the latter, George A. Bryant, Jr., executive vice-president of the Austin Company, engineers and builders, said to me:

"While activity in the industrial building field is substantially below what it was at this time last year, there is every indication that things will improve materially by the end of the first quarter.

"Events are making efficient plants and distribution facilities more and more important to the attainment of stability in business and earnings."

MACHINE TOOLS

The logic of events should also favor machine tools, which enable management to offset higher wages with increased productivity but nevertheless, the industry is now cursed with a dearth of domestic orders. Though its leaders are talking of a decisive change in four or five months, they are now concerned with how to keep their working forces intact.

Charles Stilwell, one of the leaders of this industry, told me that the cushion of foreign orders which kept up activity through December was now disappearing. The Soviet, which has been the biggest export buyer and which is described by the industry as a hard trader, is reported to have completed its present program and is not expected into the market again in a big way until much later in the year.

The trade expects British buying to taper off rapidly. Japan has been the other big export buyer, but orders from Japan are considered academic until import permits are obtained. Japan is watching exports and imports closely in order to balance her trade.

OUTLOOK FOR OIL

The petroleum industry has been an exceptional performer during the slump. As W. T. Holliday, president of the Standard Oil Company of Ohio, pointed out to me, depression for the oil industry has meant chiefly a retarded rate of growth. Mr. Holliday estimated that in his territory consumption of gasoline thus far this month was running three to four per cent ahead of the corresponding days last year, compared with a 10 to 12 per cent rate of increase in 1937. Mr. Holliday recalled that gasoline consumption in 1937 was 40 per cent more than in 1929.

He pointed out that the troubles of the industry springs from internal management, rather than from consumer acceptance of its product. Too much drilling in 1937, he said, had built up an excessive oil inventory, which had been reflected in recent downward revision of prices.

In summarizing his forecast, Mr. Holliday concluded:

Interchemical Corp. Defers Dividend

NEW YORK, Jan. 17 (INS)—Interchemical Corp. directors today deferred action on common dividend due at this time in line with a new policy that action be taken from time to time as best interests of corporation and stockholders dictate rather than at regular intervals as formerly. A total of $1 was paid on common in 1937.

Directors declared the regular quarterly $1.50 6 per cent preferred dividend. The company and several of its subsidiaries have been engaged in various important new product developments, it was revealed.

Steel Rate Is Higher This Week

By HUGH E. BRADSHAW

Top Monday news item these days when nearly all observers are anxiously studying trade statistics for signs of a turnabout is steel output. And the reason is that this one figure alone provides a broad picture of conditions in the all-important heavy industries.

This week the magazine Steel makes some comments on steel buying, however, that are worthy of close scrutiny in view of the reported gain in output of 3 points to an estimated 29 per cent of capacity. As a general thing this writer advises close consideration of such comment at times like the present. Then there is less danger of accepting surface indications that may very well be quite misleading. Rail buyers, for instance, are still holding up placement of orders pending the outcome of their higher rate plea. Agricultural implement manufacturers on the other hand are still operating at good levels and their business is coming along in a satisfactory way. Structural inquiries are spotty with placements still being made largely for the account of government agencies. All told hesitancy is the keynote and yet consumers in some instances still hold fairly large stocks of finished articles. Naturally until such goods are moved into consumptive channels they will defer expanded activities.

BUSINESS FORECASTS

Of all the various fountains of business wisdom we have always favored Washington. From the Capitol come the most authoritative forecasts. At one time the views of government technicians were most difficult to obtain. Now, however, the better Washington letters contain good, reliable, condensed versions of such opinions as given to important department heads. With all the talk about the various Washington conferences and the better feeling reported between business and political leaders, the current views of technicians are of prime importance.

As we study such forecasts on business little change is apparent. The current period is seen as marking the probable depression low. January at best is expected to average but slightly higher than December. Spring is expected to bring some further improvement and after that a slight downdrift is likely until midsummer. That is as far ahead as we want to go. Chief significance it seems is that the course of business has not yet been appreciably altered by "talks." If anything is to be accomplished by them it probably will be a lessening of the total fall.

STOCK PRICES LAG

The writer cannot help admitting to an uncertain feeling about the market. With the goal of an uptrend confirmation so near at hand it is puzzling to have the list hesitant. The only good thing about current action, and it requires a Pollyanna view, is the lack of volume when prices hesitate or turn down. If this situation should change under present conditions we would not lose any time lightening accounts. For the market having again failed of confirmation will undoubtedly be facing another slide to the lows of late last year. There is little one can do now other than wait, certainly nothing that any individual, or group of writers, can say will quickly bring about the desired changes.

RFC Loan Would Aid Wool Industry

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17 (AP)—Representative Cummings said today he expected the reconstruction corporation to make a $15,000,000 stabilization loan to peg the price of scoured wool at about 81 cents a pound and "end the wool industry's jitters."

Cummings and Senators Adams and Johnson of Colorado conferred with RFC representatives last week when James G. Brown of Pueblo, official of the Colorado Wool Growers' Association, applied for the loan he said was needed to prevent a possible $165,000,000 loss to producers and feeders on their 1937 and 1938 wool clips and lamb crops.

Strength of Aircrafts Fails To Offset Selling in Utilities

Morgan Partner Views Current Recession

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 17 (AP)—Thomas W. Lamont, a senior partner in J. P. Morgan & Company, expressed his belief today that "a good part" of the current business recession springs from "the general attitude of distrust towards business which in the last five years has been cultivated in this country."

Addressing a luncheon meeting of the University of Pennsylvania's bi-centennial endowment campaign, Lamont said, "the changes in business activity in the world are never due to any one cause. And it is a great mistake to over-simplify such causes."

The financier—who was a member of the group which conferred with President Roosevelt at the White House last week—continued:

"For example, quite contrary to the views apparently held in some quarters, the entire business community has, according to my observation, made the most strenuous and determined efforts to maintain the improvement that marked 1936 and early 1937. But the obstacles in the path have been too great.

FRESH CAPITAL

"In a great country like America, if enterprise is to continue to advance, fresh capital must be made constantly available for it. Now the capital markets, the fields of private investment, are practically closed. That does not mean that there is a 'strike' of capital.

"There is just as little reason in such a phrase as there would be to say that 30,000 employes who had lost their jobs because of slack orders had gone on strike. No! Would it not be nearer the mark to say not that capital was on strike, but that it had been 'locked out' by such things as the surplus profits tax which has given warning to investors that no longer are businesses to be permitted to conserve a fair measure of their earnings for bad times, 'locked out' by the continued unsettlement of the problems of the public utilities, the needs of which, for new capital to be expended in material and labor for improvements, are crying aloud and cannot be answered?

"And I cannot but believe that a good part of the current business recession arises from the bewilderment and loss of confidence among our citizens, owing to the general attitude of distrust towards business, which in the last five years has been cultivated in this country."

TENDENCY OF PEOPLE

Discussing the "natural tendency of people when beset with misfortune to turn with relief to the shouts of the false prophets," Lamont said:

"Today, when a renewed depression is putting to test our national character, it is not surprising that strident voices should be raised, demanding scapegoats to drive forth into the wilderness. It is not surprising that business and finance have been subjected to violent attack for alleged abuses many of which have never existed. Business is especially vulnerable to such attack, for its normal operations, especially if on a great scale, are readily distorted by fevered imagination."

"In the last few years," Lamont said, "the volume of books and articles and speeches attacking industrialists and bankers has been formidable. It may well be regarded by historians of the future as one of the major manifestations of our economic maladjustment. Many writers and makers of clever phrases have flooded the market place with articles and books that have little or no basis in fact and that set forth utterly fantastic theses; their geometric statistics to bolster up such theses being drawn chiefly from imagination. Such writers seem to have little understanding of men and their works; they distrust everybody and attribute ignoble motives to all save themselves."

Steel Operation Up 2 Points

NEW YORK, Jan. 17 (AP)—Operations in the steel industry for the current week advanced 2 points to 29.8 per cent of capacity, compared with 27.8 per cent last week, the American Iron and Steel Institute estimated today.

A month ago operations were at the rate of 23.5 per cent of capacity while a year ago they averaged 80.6 per cent.

Losses Run to 2 Points at Close

NEW YORK, Jan. 17—Strength in aircrafts was hardly sufficient to offset selling of utilities and other leaders in today's stock market.

While activity was not pronounced at any time, losses running to two points or so were widely distributed near the final hour.

Brokers seemed encouraged by the lightness of offerings and attributed the moderate set-back, following a slightly higher opening, mainly to the desire of some speculative forces to cash in on last week's substantial advance.

BONDS UNEVEN

Bonds and commodities were uneven. The French franc recovered briskly in terms of the dollar notwithstanding failure thus far in the organization of a new Cabinet at Paris.

Losses running to a point or so were registered for U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, General Motors, Chrysler, U. S. Rubber, Du Pont, Allied Chemical, Anaconda, Kennecott, American Telephone, Western Union, Consolidated Edison, Electric Power & Light, Santa Fe, N. Y. Central, Union Carbide and International Paper & Power preferred.

In the resistant division were Boeing, Douglas Aircraft, Sperry, Chesapeake & Ohio, Northern Pacific, J. C. Penney, Newport Industries, Electric Boat, Deere and Woolworth.

Aviation shares again were buoyed by expectations the President's forthcoming naval message to Congress will call for large rearmament appropriations.

GOLD MINES UP

Utilities, including Commonwealth & Southern, backed down as Wall street discussed the proposal of President Wendell L. Willkie of the C. & S. that the government purchase subsidiaries of this concern, as well as other private power companies, in the Tennessee Valley section.

Coppers did little despite a boost in the export rate for the red metal, higher scrap prices and reports the French were heavy buyers in European markets.

The financial district continued to look to Washington for market cues with thoughts that a more cheerful business outlook could develop at Wednesday's conference between the President and 50 national industrial chieftains.

CURRENT TOPICS

Market analysts studied the weekly survey of the magazine "Steel" which said that hesitancy seemed to be the keynote in this field, with potential buyers holding off pending a more definite sign that general economic conditions have changed for the better.

The review found small demand from the automobile sector had increased modestly and it was thought agricultural machinery makers, in view of current satisfactory production, would soon become more important purchasers. Heavy railroad orders were looked for by some observers when the freight rate question is settled.

At the beginning of foreign currency transactions the French franc was up .00⅛ of a cent at 3.34⅞ cents. Sterling was 1-16 of a cent lower at $4.99 11-16.

Rails Win High Court Review

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17 (AP)—The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad and other carriers won a Supreme Court review today of their effort to enjoin the Interstate Commerce Commission from enforcing orders reducing rates for the transportation of coke.

The high court consented to pass upon a decision of a special three-judge federal court in the northern Illinois district, dismissing a request for an injunction.

The I. C. C. orders related to the reduction of rates from the South to "central territory" and between points in the latter.

Woolworth Fails to Recover Tax

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17 (AP)—F. W. Woolworth Company failed in the Supreme Court today in its effort to recover an alleged $558,704 federal income tax overpayment for 1922 to 1925.

The high court refused to pass upon a decision of the second circuit court of appeals that the chain store company was not entitled to a credit on account of a British income tax which was deducted and withheld from dividends paid to Woolworth by its foreign subsidiary.

Some Letup in Downtrend; New Jolt

By B. C. FORBES

Take facts first:

The swiftness of the nation's descent toward depression has distinctly slackened.

Stock quotations so far this year have somewhat better than held their own.

Principal farm commodity prices have steadied.

Automobile output, though still acutely disappointing, seems to be creeping in the right direction.

Copper prices have firmed.

Cotton is holding its own, although it commands only two-thirds of what it did 12 months ago and has not recovered substantially from last year's minimum, established early in November.

DISAPPOINTING FIGURES

Commercial failures are more numerous.

Some price cutting has set in.

Forward buying, both of consumer and durable goods, is still very light, even though inventories admittedly have been distinctly reduced, reflecting continued misgivings over the nearby outlook.

Prospective changes in the Supreme Court membership are not relished by men of important affairs.

Turning to developments which cannot be stated statistically, there has been a mingling of the favorable and the unfavorable.

Hopefulness was inspired by President Roosevelt's series of conferences with utility, industrial, banking, labor leaders.

The impression had ben widely conveyed that he was now in a conciliatory co-operative mood, due to the necessity for stemming the economic downswing.

But toward the week-end he caused disappointment by declaring that the administration would spend every dollar already proposed to set up municipalities in subsidized competition with investment owned utilities, that there would be no letup in warfare on utility holding companies, and—a fresh surprise—that he plans to "eliminate holding companies in every field of enterprise, industrial, banking, etc.

ROOSEVELT ANTAGONISTIC

This writer learned authoritatively long ago that Mr. Roosevelt was antagonistic to big business in every form and that he was ambitious to curtail drastically its power and scope—notwithstanding that America has won industrial world leadership through the initiative, research, enterprise, expenditures, brains of our large concerns rather than of our small concerns.

It remains to be seen whether this latest public revelation of the chief executive's real attitude will have a chilling effect upon leading fillers of pay envelopes who lately have manifested genuine anxiety to co-operate with the powers that be at Washington.

Bluntly, the whole national outlook is vitally bound up with Mr. Roosevelt's proposals, plans, programs. He, transcendently more than any other individual, can help or hurt revival of activity and improvement.

What is he going to do about it?

P. S.

Franc Steady on Blum News

NEW YORK, Jan. 17 (INS)—The franc held relatively steady today on news that Leon Blum was attempting to form a new ministry to include the Centre party as well as members of the Popular Front. It opened here at 3.34⅛ cents, off ⅛ point, after ranging as low as 3.28 cents abroad prior to the opening of trading in New York. London reported official control support of the franc to meet offerings from Switzerland and Holland.

Other currencies were mixed. The pound lost 1-16 of a cent to $4.99 11-16, with Scandinavian currencies unchanged to slightly lower. Swiss francs were off ⅛ point at 23.09¼ cents. But belgas were unchanged at 16.91 cents and Dutch guilders rose ⅛ point to 55.68⅛ cents.

The Brighter Side

By DAMON RUNYON

(Copyright, 1938, by King Features Syndicate, Inc. International Copyright and all other rights reserved.)

We dislike being the harbinger of bad tidings, but we must inform you that it is a good even money bet that you are allergic.

Damon Runyon

To be allergic means to react unfavorably under medical tests to something you like. Whatever it is, it is bad for you. We are allergic to coffee and tobacco, the last, but one, of our small pleasures on this earth. The other is sleep.

We would not wager we are not allergic to sleep at that, we love it so, only the doctors have not yet discovered any test to determine that specific form of allergia. When they do, it is not at all improbable that they will find that sleep is bad for us, and then we will have to remain awake the rest of our days.

Allergic, according to a medical dictionary that we consulted, is a condition in which the patient is sensitive to the effects of physical agents, such as heat, cold, light, etc. It is a condition of unusual or exaggerated susceptibility to a substance which is harmless in similar amounts for the majority of members of the same species.

You go to a doctor complaining of a pain or ache for which he is unable to find any immediate explanation and he is apt to wind up his consultation by saying:

"Maybe you are allergic."

"What's that, doc?"

You say anxiously.

"Is it catching? and how do I find out if I'm what you call it?"

"Come in tomorrow, and we'll show you," he instructs, grimly.

So, on the morrow, disturbed by a vague feeling of autumn, you go in, and the doctor starts spearing you in the arm with a small sharp instrument, which does not hurt much, but which is in no sense a pleasure. These instruments squirt into you divers and sundry juices.

ALSO OLD SHOES

The juices are animal, vegetable and mineral. They are the fluid extracts of wheat, and corn, and rye, and probably Scotch. Of dog and cat, fur, and old shoes, and feather beds, and democrats, and sunflowers and strawberries, and Persian rugs, and slide trombones. The juices are the essence of alfalfa, goldenrod, muskmelons, antique tapestries, horses necks, Ford model T's, Chippendale furniture, and your wife's mascara and lip rouge.

If, under one of these injections, your epidermis develops a slight tumor or a rash, you are allergic to whatever substance was contained in that particular dilution, possibly your favorite brand of gin. Whatever it is you must quit it at once. It may be that you will be found allergic to something you detest, anyway, but as a general proposition it is likely to be something you adore.

We had the doctor test us six times for spinach, and four for olives, which we detest, and nothing happened. Nothing else we dislike raised as much as a pimple. It was when he gave us jabs in the arm of the juice of confetti and tobacco that we suddenly took on the aspect of one suffering from a sudden attack of mosquito bites.

THING CALLED LOVE

We had a long talk with the doctor about these tests, and we told him we did not think the medical profession has sufficiently developed their poise. We asked him if the tests could not be extended to cover the matter of love.

We pointed out that if medical science could figure a way to make an extract of a lady's emotions, and then needle her suitors with it as they came along, it would prevent a lot of unhappy amalgamations. If a fellow broke out in a case of hives under the test, obviously she was not the gal for him, and vice versa.

The doctor said he did not see how it could be done, but he admitted the wonders of medical science are limited, and he promised to give our idea serious consideration.

In the meantime, he said, we better lay off the coffee and the tobacco, and we thought that was a tough sentence, allowing that we followed his advice, until we ran across a man who knows another man by the name of Krausbaum, who also was recently pronounced allergic.

TOUGH BREAK

Krausbaum got a really mean break. He is madly in love with a young lady who runs a small florist shop, and lives in an apartment just back of the shop. She specializes in roses, and has built up a nice little trade.

Krausbaum courted her in and out of business hours, and a happy marriage seemed imminent, when Krausbaum was seized with a nasal affliction something like hay fever.

He went to his doctor who gave him these tests and found that he is allergic to all kinds of flowers and specifically roses. He cannot visit the young lady without suffering greatly, our informant said, and it looks as if the romance may terminate. We asked our informant why the young lady did not quit the florist business in the interests of love, and he said:

"Well, then they would both starve, because Krausbaum is allergic to work, too."

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17 (INS)—A nation-wide study of the wisdom of a collective peace program, aimed to insure peace through various methods, has been begun by the National League of Women Voters.

Communities Invited To Hub's Birthday Ball

Residents of Greater Boston communities where no plans are under way to hold a President's Birthday Ball are invited to attend Boston's celebration at the Boston Garden in a special announcement issued today by Mayor Maurice J. Tobin.

"Anything Boston can do to aid sufferers from infantile paralysis is done gladly," said the Mayor. "All donations or the purchase of tickets will be welcomed.

"Checks or money orders should be made payable to Philip Stockton, treasurer, care of the Birthday Ball headquarters, 258 Washington St. Telephone reservations can be made by calling Capitol 8220."

Boston, Mayor Tobin was eager to point out, has never drawn any line between resident and non-residents in its efforts to aid infantile paralysis victims.

In the epidemic of 1935 out of the 649 cases handled by the Boston Health department, 236 were people who did not live in Boston.

William T. Doyle is in charge of tickets for city employees, who are expected to buy 7500 for the big affair.

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN

MONDAY, JANUARY 17, 1938

+ + For of Him, and through Him, and to Him, are all things; to whom be the glory forever.—Romans XI, 36. + +

The text for today is suggested by Bishop Samuel G. Babcock of the Episcopal Diocese of Massachusetts. The next text will be suggested by the Rev. Charles Wesley Burns, Methodist Episcopal Bishop of New England.

The Editor Says:

BY HIS NOMINATION of Stanley Reed, the Solicitor General, to become an associate justice of the Supreme Court, President Roosevelt has made a judicious selection.

Mr. Reed has been chosen to succeed George Sutherland, of Utah, one of the so-called "conservative" justices, so his nomination must be regarded in the light of Mr. Roosevelt's determination to "liberalize" the Supreme Court.

But it is hardly accurate to describe Mr. Reed as an out and out New Dealer.

A Kentucky Democrat in politics, Mr. Reed was actually brought into the Federal Government by a Republican administration when President Hoover made him the counsel for the old Farm Credit Board.

As counsel later for the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, he conducted the unprecedented legal formalities of the "bank holiday" in 1933; and in his present position of solicitor general he has been regarded as perhaps the best lawyer in the Federal service.

HE HAS BEEN DESCRIBED

—as "a lawyer's lawyer,"—as one having exceptional acumen in the determination of excellent issues.

At the same time, Mr. Reed—a man of considerable means himself—is the type of citizen commonly designated as "social minded."

It was in fact his activities in founding farmers co-operatives that led him into the public service.

By way of personal qualifications, Mr. Reed has a rich cultural background, with formal studies ranging from Kentucky Wesleyan College through Yale University, the University of Virginia, Columbia University and the Sorbonne at Paris.

Not many men elevated to high legal or judicial office have evidently been more broadly educated in both the philosophy and the practice of law.

SENATOR COTTON'S

—Committee on Taxation continues in the face of certain defeat to press for the adoption of a Consumer's Tax in Massachusetts.

The protests of organized labor, of business, of industry, and of small wage-earners who resent being taxed on the same scale as the multi-millionaire do not deter the committee members.

Apparently on the assumption that they are right and most of the people wrong, they are now ready to present their make-everybody-pay proposal to their fellow Senators and Representatives.

It will be interesting to see what these other members of the Legislature do.

Will they vote for the Consumer's Tax knowing full well that they are compelling the welfare recipient to give up a part of his five-dollar charity order for politicians to spend?

Will they be so lacking in common sense that they will penalize stores and industries for doing business in Massachusetts and deliberately drive trade to other States?

Our opinion is that the vast majority of the men on Beacon Hill are not that foolish. To most legislators it will be powerfully apparent that a vote for this Consumer's Tax will be also a vote for one's own defeat at the next election.

IT IS NO REFLECTION

—on the six other capable men who died in the recent Samoan Clipper disaster that Captain Edwin Musick was singled out for special mention and commendation.

"Uncle Ed" Musick was TOPS to all airmen, and most of all to the six brave men who died with him.

He was one of three Americans to win the coveted Harmon Trophy, which annually designates "The World's Most Outstanding Aviator." He had flown a million miles and more under exacting circumstances and without mishap.

It is a common mistake, in the wake of every great aviation disaster, to say the progress of aviation has been set back.

As a matter of fact, no disaster has ever seriously impeded aviation. Evidence has come quickly that the Samoan Clipper tragedy will not be a deterrent.

The eleven passengers who had reservations on the Philippine Clipper BEFORE the tragedy were all in their seats when the ship took off for Honolulu AFTER the grim details of the tragedy were fully known.

THE FLAG SALUTE LAW

—would receive a drastic alteration if the Legislature accepted the suggestion of Representative Arthur W. Coolidge of Reading.

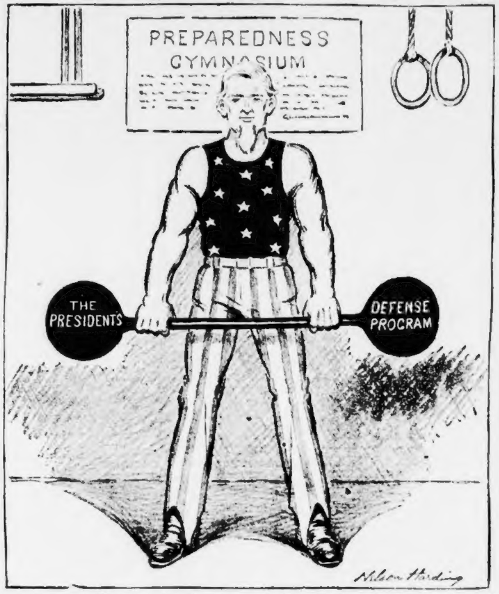
Mr. Coolidge would amend the statute to exempt students and teachers from pledging allegiance to the national emblem when their scruples prohibit such a gesture of patriotism and gratitude.

Senators and Representatives will do well to put this proposal where it belongs—in the wastebasket.

With Communists, Nazis, Japanese and others insulting Old Glory, this is certainly NOT THE TIME to give any American the right to stand in silence while other Americans renew their faith in the nation that protects them in peace and war and guarantees their religious freedom at all times.

How to Keep Strong

By Nelson Harding



A foremost duty of the Congress is to provide ADEQUATELY for the national defense.

As outlined in the Washington dispatches of International News Service, the President's program will do exactly that.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, JAN. 17.

DIARY: An avalanche of oranges, grapefruit and tangerines from Billy De Beck, the Ryley Coopers, D. W. Griffith, Earl Carroll, James Woods, Paul Whiteman and Eddie Peabody. And J. P. McEvoy sent his new book, "Father Meets Son," pleasantly inscribed. Chester Marsh to a late breakfast.

Typing and a publisher asked me to select for an anthology the American poem best remembered. My instant choice was James Whitcomb Riley's "When the Frost is on the Pumpkin." So in stitches over an hilarious self-drawn postcard from the dour Theodore Dreiser.

Abroad with my wife to a public and talking to the dazzling Lorraine Manville and met her new good-looking Holland husband, Mr. Dresselhuys. And spoke to Lucius Beebe there in white-tied elegance on way to the play. Also Beth Leary, the girl everybody knows, and her constant companion, Mrs. James Farley.

A most ambitious exponent of a vanishing art is John Murgatroyd, who practices taxidermy in the serene St. James section of Brooklyn. At 73 he is still turning out specimen and sculptural models. And determined to quit only when he has created in bronze models of all living American animals. He has stuffed exhibits for Martin Johnson and many big game hunters. Among his patrons have been Theodore Roosevelt, Elihu Root, Cornelius Vanderbilt and Harry Payne Whitney.

The first of the radio announcers to make a stake whopping enough to retire is reputedly Ted Husing. According to Variety, the lean young fellow whose voice has been heard broadcasting most big football games is ready to call it a day. He may return to the microphone later or may pursue another calling but at the moment he just wants to get away, heigh ho, from it all.

Graham McNamee is another weary with the grind and is taking on no more program commitments.

The chorus man is almost extinct. There are no longer professionals listed at the agencies because of so few calls. In peak years of the theater, there were 5000. Many stars and featured players have come out of the comparatively lowly rank.

Oscar Shaw and Jack Whiting are conspicuous examples. The average chorus man was a complex person living a bleak life away from footlights. He was invariably a meticulous dresser and being handsome was, of course, essential. He rarely indulged humanity's minor vices and had little interest in the ladies.

Due to his small emolument—from $35 to $50 a week about six months of the year—he lived in shabby rooming houses and ate mostly in automats.

When I was articled to Ziegfeld, especially during the triumphal days of Marilyn Miller, I saw much of the chorus man. Ziegfeld was a Simon Legree toward most professionals—especially the high priced—but had a soft spot somehow for gentlemen of the ensemble. He would talk pleasantly to them, whereas his contacts with other more fortunate members of the cast were snarly.

Thingumbobs: The Philippine's Manuel Quezon has a germ phobia . . . Dr. Wellington Koo, Chinese diplomat, tunes in on Amos 'n' Andy . . . Abel Green writes notes in French to his friends just to keep in practice . . . A high school play that Meredith Nicholson wrote still brings him royalties.

All my life I've had a terror of policemen. Today, scanning a fresh edition along the street, I bumped into one. I expected to be clubbed silly and thrown into a patrol wagon.

Instead he smiled, stood pleasantly chatting awhile and finally began to tell me a joke he had just heard. At which I rocked and fairly screamed with mirth. So much-so, passersby stopped to gawk. I never realized until a block away that I was hysterical.

For Peace and Prosperity

The Jewish Advocate commends the BUY AMERICAN campaign of the Boston Evening American and other Hearst newspapers. In an editorial, accurately titled: ONE WAY TO PEACE, the Advocate, in its January 14th edition, said in part:

"More than ever before with the threat of war hovering over Europe and already a reality in many portions of the globe, it becomes necessary that the United States watch its steps carefully. Pacifism of a sort that was in place ten years ago has today given way to an awareness of world conditions that demands adequate defense.

"That President Roosevelt is not to be caught napping was evident from his speech the other day, and while we may all deplore the millions of dollars spent on armaments while people starve, it must be admitted that stern reality has shocked America into a serious, thinking mood.

"We must beware lest our foreign trade be made the means of ensnaring us into a conflict on another continent. Fully realizing that no nation can be wholly self-sufficient, and that adequate prosperity is based in large degree upon our commerce with other countries, we must nevertheless during this trying period not only keep out of danger zones, but also refrain from lending economic aid to aggressors by means of trade.

"The Buy-American campaign launched by the Hearst papers several years ago, and more recently again emphasized in the Boston Evening American is proving to be a wise policy, not alone from the point of view of aiding American industry, but from its indirect means of keeping American fingers off a hot stove . . ."

Human Side of the News

By Edwin C. Hill

THE Queen of England has a family ghost which haunts the ancient home of her family, Glamis Castle, in Scotland. And the Glamis Ghost has been seen again, to the shivering delight of the whole countryside.

One of the most arresting ghost stories I ever heard was told by the famous French journalist, Andre Maurois. He heard it from a French lady—and I'll wager you could not guess the ending.

"Five years ago, when I was so very ill," she said, "I noticed I had the same dream every night. I would walk in the country and, from afar, would see a house, white, low and long, surrounded by a grove of lindens. In my dream I was always drawn to this house.

"At the entrance was a gate, painted white. There was a gracefully curving path, bordered by trees, under which grew spring flowers — primroses and anemones — which faded the moment I plucked them. There was a large lawn with one long bed of violets and red and white flowers which produced a delightful effect in the green stretch.

"The house, of white stone, had a huge roof of blue slate. The door, of light-colored oak with carved panels, was at the end of a short flight of steps. I longed to go inside this house, but I never could get anyone to answer me. I rang, I shouted and at last I would awaken.

"Such was my dream, and it was repeated month after month, always the same, so that I ended by thinking I certainly must have seen this park and this chateau in my childhood. My yearning to find it became so strong that one summer I decided to spend my vacation seeking the house of my dreams. I drove all through Normandy, Touraine, and Poitou. But I found nothing.

"When spring came again, I resumed my drives through the country about Paris, and one day, on a hill near Orleans, I suddenly felt an agreeable shock. Although I had never been in this region before, I recognized perfectly the countryside which lay at my right. I knew that I had found the chateau of my dreams.

"As if I had lived there all my life, I knew that a private road led off from the highway. I took it, and it led me to a white gate, and there was the path I had so often followed in my dreams. Beneath the trees I admired the primroses and anemones. There was the green lawn and the door of light-colored oak.

"I walked rapidly up the steps and rang the bell. Almost immediately a servant appeared, a melancholy old fellow, wearing a black coat. He looked at me strangely without speaking a word.

" 'I beg your pardon,' I said, finally, 'But this house is so beautiful I would like to see it.' 'The chateau is to let, Madame,' he replied. 'I am here to show it.' 'To let,' I said. 'What a piece of luck! How is it the owners themselves aren't living in this fascinating house?'

"Again with that strange look in his eyes, he said: 'The owners did live in it, Madame. They left only when the house became haunted.'

" 'Haunted?' I said. 'That certainly won't stop me. I didn't know that people believed in ghosts any more!' 'I shouldn't believe it either, Madame,' he said slowly, 'if I had not, myself, so often seen in the night the ghost that drove my masters away.'

" 'What a story!' I exclaimed, trying to smile, but strangely disturbed. 'A story,' said the old man gently, 'that you, least of all, Madame, should not laugh at, since that ghost was you.' "

The Political Parade

By George Rothwell Brown

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.

TWO GENTLEMEN, long regarded by their friends as being headed White Houseward —in the event a certain other gentleman might not care to renew his lease—have suddenly come a cropper on the Anti-Lynching Bill.

You will probably hear less from now on about the availability of Governor George H. Earle of Pennsylvania and Senator Barkley of Kentucky. For this bill is tearing at the vitals of the New Deal and no mistake, and there are bound to be some political casualties.

When Barkley's friends hailed his elevation to Senate leadership, over Pat Harrison, by one vote, as a step to the Presidency, it was written down in this place that in all probability that hot spot would cost him the Democratic nomination if one should become available in 1940.

The battle a united Southern Democracy is putting up against this Anti-Lynching Bill bears out that prophecy.

As Administration leader of the Senate, Barkley is supporting the bill which is demanded by the colored voters of the land, nearly all of whom have now been lifelong Democrats since 1936.

For this support—of the head and not the heart—"Dear Alben" probably will pay a heavy price. His Southern colleagues are saying that he will get no Dixie delegates in the next Democratic national convention.

Although the South lost its veto power in party councils by the abrogation of the two-thirds rule, the South two years hence in all probability will still be strong enough to prevent the nomination of any candidate, except Mr. Roosevelt himself.

The South, incidentally, is beginning to think it might even do that, if the President should decide to run again, but this is counting the chickens before the hen has even taken the nest to lay the eggs.

Southern objection to Earle grows out of the social equality laws enacted in Pennsylvania under his administration. Southern Senators have turned thumbs down on the Governor, for whom there was such a big build-up at the Philadelphia convention.

Not in many years have such bitter speeches been heard in the Senate as have been provoked by this bill.

The political consequences of the effort to force the measure to a vote—and it would surely pass if a roll call could be ordered—are now such as to make it apparent that a major party disaster may grow out of it.

A new note is creeping into the hostile debate. Declaring itself betrayed by its own party on this bill, Southern Democracy is beginning to question the wisdom of other New Deal policies.

Some Republicans are counseling full party opposition to the bill, on the ground that it invades the sovereign rights of the States.

That's what the Republicans would do to be consistent. That is the basis of its whole opposition to the New Deal.

Representative John Taber of New York, ranking Republican of the Appropriations Committee, has figured out that Federal taxes in this country have increased from $2,800,000,000 in 1933 to $5,500,000,000 in 1937. The national income has increased in that period from $38,000,000,000 in 100-cent dollars in 1933 to $68,000,000,000 in 59-cent dollars in 1937.

Mr. Roosevelt recently spoke of the goal of a national income of $100,000,000,000 annually. Taber says he could make it by bringing the dollar down to 40 cents.

March of Events

By Benjamin DeCasseres

BRITISH FOREIGN SECRETARY EDEN has plans for the United States about which the American people know very little.

The Secretary recently said in regard to the Far Eastern situation:

"We are constantly in daily close consultation with the Government of the United States. Over and over again we have taken either parallel or similar action which in itself is an indication of the closeness of our collaboration with Washington."

There is only one thing missing from the Eden statement. It is a quotation from the book of Samuel:

Is Uncle Sam's name to become UNCLE URIAH?

NOT an "improbable" movie: Pasquale Duraccio abandoned his son, Joseph Duraccio, when the latter was an infant.

Twenty years after there was one of the regular meetings of the New York State Parole Board. Before it appeared Young Joseph Duraccio to give an account of himself since he had been paroled from prison. He had been convicted of a stick-up.

Hearing the name of Pasquale Duraccio called by the clerk of the board, Joseph beheld his father step out from the parolees. Pasquale had been in prison for killing a man and was now out on life parole.

There they stood, like statues, speechless, father and son—both paroled criminals.

They left the parole board headquarters together in an automobile. What they had to tell one another of the last twenty years of their lives and what they will make of the next twenty years of their lives would make a grand piece of psychological fiction.

Anna Karenina, Becky Sharp, Juliet, Madame Bovary, Desdemona, Alice in Wonderland, Lady MacBeth, Ophelia and other famous female characters of fiction were all created by men.

This puzzles Miss Susan Ertz, English novelist, who writes in the bulletin of the Writers' Club of Columbia University, that she has come to the conclusion that "the best-known characters (in fiction) are, for some extraordinary reason, all women and are again, for some extraordinary reason, all created by men."

The reason for this is simple: It is impossible for woman to take an impersonal, independent view of her own sex; therefore she lacks the very first ingredient of artistic creation.
